Wisconsin Solon.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.
Washington, June 18.—Weakened by a long series of bronchial attacks, Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, died of angina pectoris at 1:21 p. m. Thursday.
He had been afflicted with heart attacks for 10 years. An attack of influenza in Europe two years ago, pneumonia and recurrences of bronchitis several times since, with the added strain of a two months' speaking trip during his presidential campaign last fall, finally wore him out.
In a bitter political career that began when Coolidge was eight years old, he had never admitted final defeat. But two weeks ago he knew a foe who never loses was at him. He was lying in bed with a bronchial attack and heard several children playing under his window.
Dying, He Philosophizes.
"A life is a wonderful thing," he said to his younger daughter, Mary. "I'd like to begin it all over again. But I think I have earned a long-needed vacation."
Tuesday night he knew this rest was near.
"I am at peace with all the world, but there is a lot of work I could still do," he said to his son, Robert, Jr., who has been his senate secretary and political manager for several years.
Then he let fall a wondering remark that showed the scars left by the abuse he had borne all through his 45 years in public life.
His Last Words of Love.
"I don't know how the people will feel toward me, but I shall take to the grave my love for them that has

CITY HALL BOND
ELECTION BLOCKED

Aldermanic Board Refuses To Indorse Vote on
$2,000,000 Bonds—Conference Is Planned.

An attempt to hold an election on issuance of $2,000,000 worth of bonds for construction of a new city hall was defeated Thursday afternoon when the aldermanic board voted it down by a count of four to three. The action followed adoption of the measure by general council by a substantial majority.

Councilman C. G. Allen, author of the paper, stated that he will ask a conference committee at the next regular meeting of council, in the hope that a full membership of the aldermanic board will change the decision and council will be given a second opportunity to vote.

Rental to Meet Expenses.
In introducing the measure, he explained that rental from the present city hall and from unused office space in the proposed new building would be sufficient to pay sinking funds and interest on the new structure, and that a tax increase would not be necessitated.

"Atlanta needs, and needs badly, a new city hall to retain her place among the other larger cities in the United States," Mr. Allen said, "and this bond issue would place us in a position to command the attention of every city in the whole country."

"I don't believe there would be any real opposition, especially when this bond issue would carry a clause whereby there would not be an additional tax levy for these bonds and

Fire Disaster
Brings Suits

Families of Four of Six Firemen Killed May 6 Ask Damages.

Families of four of six firemen killed May 6 when the large warehouse of the Jass Manufacturing company, at 321 Decatur street, was burned to the ground, Thursday filed suits in Fulton superior court for a total of $400,000 damages. Each of the claimants asked $100,000. Attorneys Hill & Adams filed all the petitions.
Mrs. R. L. Dennard, widow of Captain R. L. Dennard, who lost his life when the second floor of the building crashed through, pinning the six firemen beneath it, asked $100,000 in a suit in which she joined the Georgia Railroad and Banking company, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad company and the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad company, as lessees of the Georgia Railroad and Banking company, and the Atlanta Joint terminal as defendants.
The petition alleged that the defendants between 1 and 3 o'clock on the morning of May 6 were engaged in switching freight cars, and that in so doing sparks from the engine set fire to the warehouse in which the firemen met their death.
The suit also charged that the en-

COTTON GROWERS
RECEIVE CHECKS
FOR $2,159,000

Final Payments Made to Members of Georgia Cotton Growers' Cooperative Association.

Final payments aggregating $2,159,000 were mailed Thursday afternoon to the members of the Georgia Cotton Growers' Cooperative association by headquarters of the organization here. This sum marks the last payment due members on 1924 cotton crop contracts.
Total payments made to the members during the past year, including the final payment, reached $12,000,000 on the 105,982 bales of cotton delivered by the members, according to officials.

Remarkable progress was shown during the past season, according to the statement by the association heads, in the matter of operating costs. The cost of operation, including storage, insurance, interest, office overhead and all items of expense, amounted to 99 points, or $4.96 on an average bale of cotton, the average weight per bale of cotton handled during the past season being 491 pounds.

During the first two years of the association, when the organization was being built and worked out, expenses of operation were approximately $7 per bale, it was said. Officials accounted for reduction in overhead or operating costs in a number of ways. However, it was emphasized that the one thing that has been most instrumental in the reduction of expenses is that members delivered 40,000 bales more cotton this year than in the previous year, and that as members have consented to learn more of the organization, their cooperation, as individual members, is better, which necessitates much less work, thereby cutting down the costs of operation.

Scale of Prices Given.
The good middling white, 1 1/16-inch pool, brought the members of the association who delivered such cotton a net price of 26.02 cents per pound, after expenses were deducted. This was the highest price paid for any pool of short cotton, it was stated.
The pool that classed "ordinary," which is the lowest grade of cotton, with the exception of "dogs"—practically unmerchantable—brought members 19.73 cents net, and in this pool there were only 69 bales delivered out of the total of 105,982 bales handled by the association, it was pointed out.

Chicago, June 18.—Testimony depended upon to prove that the death from typhoid fever of William Nelson McClintock, the "millionaire orphan," was caused by criminal means was adduced by the prosecution today as its last step in the murder trial of William Darling Shepherd, the youth's foster father.
Charles C. Faiman, guarded in a downtown hotel for months by state's attorney's detectives while he awaited a call to the witness stand to prove "a corpus delicti," "the body of the crime," never faltered in his accusation of Shepherd, and with his testimony in, Prosecutor Robert E. Crowe announced the state's case was ended.
Called as a witness by the court after Prosecutor Crowe, in an eleven-hour move last yesterday, announced he could not sponsor him because he could not vouch for his testimony. Faiman never gave the state cause for a moment's worry, as he gave his testimony upon direct examination by Judge Thomas J. Lynch.
Took Hour to Tell Story.
Uninterrupted by interrogations, Faiman talked for an hour in a dead, flat monotone scarcely audible, with downcast eyes, much wetting of the lips and with much shifting about in the witness chair.
He gave Shepherd three test tubes full of typhoid bacilli, taught him how to slay young McClintock with them, gave Shepherd back an incriminating letter for $50, demanded $250,000 for his participation in the elimination of Billy McClintock, was willing to accept $200,000 for his part and finally agreed upon $100,000, testified Faiman.
Cross-examination by Prosecutor Crowe, who told Judge Lynch yesterday.

REVISED FINANCE
SHEET IS PASSED

Paper Will Now Go to Mayor Sims and Approval Is Expected—Peters Street Aided.

The revised June finance sheet was adopted by council at an adjourned session Thursday, and the decision was concurred in by the aldermanic board. The first sheet was vetoed by the mayor.

The revised paper will go to Mayor Sims for final action this morning, and his approval is expected, as he sat with the finance committee much of the time it was redrawing the sheet, and after an examination Wednesday, indicated that he would approve it if passed by council.

The new sheet, it was explained by Alderman W. B. Duvall, chairman of the finance committee, slashed a net amount of $64,743.24 from the original sheet, and, of course, reduced anticipated receipts by a like amount.
Funds for practically all street improvements were cut out of the new sheet, and operating expenses were sliced in almost every department. In addition, the sheet reduces the salary of city warden from $175 to $100 a month for the remainder of the year; cut out a stenographer and engineer in the building inspector's office, and stopped the pay of the secretary of the boxing commission for the rest of the year.

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen.—
(By radio from Steamer Heimdal.)—June 18.—Our planes left Kings Bay at 5 o'clock in the afternoon of May 21 with load approximating three tons by way of Amsterdam Island. At Sydtag we encountered fog above which we rose to the height of 3,100 feet in order to navigate. During the next two hours the planes flew like bullets through the fog which lasted until 8 o'clock.

After 8 o'clock and for the remainder of the journey the conditions of the visibility were excellent. An observation at 10 o'clock showed that we were too far to the west, probably due to northeast winds above the fog, which prevented us from positively observing the deviation. We laid our course further east until 1 o'clock in the morning of May 22, when half of our gasoline was exhausted, and it became necessary to attempt a descent in order to secure definite bearings with a view to our further movements. We were then above a large lane in the ice, the first of this size which we had encountered. We then flew lower and observed the surrounding ice, to discover whether there was block ice on the lane.

Not once during the trip had we seen a suitable landing place among the jagged ice of the polar car. Neither was there one here, so we descended to the water in the broad ice lane. Our fears regarding the descent were not groundless, it proved. Immediately after landing on the water the N-25 area of about 100,000 square ical situation. While flying northward we had observed an became locked between two masses of ice while we were trying to get our airplanes clear. In a short time the whole ice lane froze tight, gripping the N-24, also. Observations during the night disclosed our position as 87 degrees and 44 minutes north latitude and 10 degrees and 20 minutes west longitude, so that the distance covered in our eight-hour flight was exactly 1,000 kilometers. As our average speed was 150 kilometers per hour, this meant that a head wind had put us back 200 kilometers. We took two soundings at our landing place and found a depth of 3,750 meters.

During the following days we studied the drift conditions and observed the magnetic variation and also the meteorolog-

COUNCIL DEFEATS

Favorable Report of Com-

ville Turned Down.

Attempts to increase Atlanta's size by annexing Hapeville, College Park, East Point and part of the Druid Hills section met defeat in city council Thursday when petitions asking the legislature to authorize elections in those municipalities were voted down.

An effort also was made to exclude a section near Kirkwood which council Monday went on record as being in favor of annexing, but that also was lost, and a councilman request will go to the legislature asking that it be added to the city.

The action on College Park, Hapeville and East Point was unexpected, as shortly before council met, residents of those cities, appearing before the charter revision committee, had expressed themselves as favoring annexation, and the committee sent a favorable majority report to council.

Council's action came when the adverse minority report of Aldermen Jesse W. Armistead and W. B. Harmsfield was adopted without debate, and with only a few dissenting votes.

At the public hearing, Mayor Hugh Couch of Hapeville; Willard See and Charles Everett, of College Park, and other representatives of the three towns who favored annexation, told the committee that the three municipalities, with intervening territory, which also would be included, would

J. W. Harmon Also Held in $5,000 Bond for Involuntary Manslaughter.

J. W. Harmon, 20, of 12 Adair avenue, Thursday afternoon was sentenced to 20 days in the city stockade on a charge of reckless driving, and was held for the Fulton county grand jury on $5,000 bond on charges of involuntary manslaughter, by Recorder Pro Tem. Murphy M. Calloway.

Attorney Audley M. Lane, chief counsel for Harmon, appealed the case.

The charges against Harmon were made in connection with an automobile accident Sunday afternoon at the intersection of Glenn and Windsor streets in which Mrs. J. D. Chastain was killed.

According to police reports, Harmon was driving his automobile north in Windsor street, while J. D. Chastain, husband of the woman who was killed, was going east in Glenn street. In the car with Mr. Chastain were his wife, their two daughters, Thelma and Ruby Chastain; a son, Harry Chastain, and G. B. Chastain, father of J. D. Chastain. T. E. Mason, of 430 Windsor street, was in the car with Harmon.

Mrs. Chastain died in an ambulance en route to Grady hospital. She was thrown from the auto when the cars collided, and suffered a fractured skull.

Chastain also was tried in recorder's court on charges of reckless driving. The case was dismissed.

Mason testified that Mrs. Chastain jumped from the automobile just before the cars collided, while Chastain stated that she was thrown from the auto by the impact.

Among the speakers making strong appeals in behalf of a greater educational movement in the state were Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech; Dr. Harvey M. Con-

President of Emory university; General Walter A. Harris, of Macon, recently elected president of the University of Georgia Alumni association.

Dr. J. R. McCain, president of Agnes Scott college; Howard W. See, president of the Dixie Metal and Culvert company; Mrs. Samuel L. Inman, Miss Josephine Williford, secretary of the college placement work; Burr Blackburn, secretary citizens' educational movement, and Professor William Hooper, University of Georgia.

Members of the various alumni associations of colleges and universities, of Georgia and other states, were called to meet to launch a cooperative movement among college men and women of Georgia for the betterment of educational conditions and to discuss the practical work of finding positions for college men and college women in Georgia after their graduation from their respective institutions.

JUNE 29 DATE SET

AT WRIGHTSVILLE

Wrightsville, Ga., June 18.—Following a conference of lawyers today, June 29, was selected as a date for the trial of Charles G. Rawlings, Sanderville banker, indicted on a charge of murder in connection with the shooting of C. A. Tarbutton early in February.

Next Monday had been fixed as a tentative date for the trial.

The Constitution is proud that through its membership in the North American Newspaper alliance it is in a position to supply the people of Atlanta and the southeast with the complete and exclusive day-by-day story of this great and daring undertaking in the north.

The flight of Amundsen for the pole is one of the thrilling incidents of a generation. Here is a famous explorer who takes his life in his hands for a great scientific adventure. The world has anxiously awaited for news of the outcome.

That news has been sent out exclusively by a correspondent of the North American Newspaper alliance. The alliance, of which The Constitution is a charter member, is an organization of the leading American newspapers which are cooperating to handle important news for their readers in a big way.

The correspondent of the North American Newspaper alliance is the only reporter with the Amundsen expedition. As a matter of courtesy brief bulletins from his reports are furnished general news agencies. But only newspapers belonging to the alliance are able to keep their readers informed of the detailed developments.

EXPEDITION LANDS AT KINGS BAY;
ALL MEMBERS OF PARTY ARE SAFE

Party of Six Explorers Had Been Cut Off From World Since May 21—Amundsen Is Thoroughly Convinced There Is No Land on This Side of North Pole.

Oslo, June 18.—Winging out of the great frozen region surrounding the North Pole, a single airplane came back to Kings Bay early this morning bearing Capt. Roald Amundsen, Lincoln Ellsworth and their party, and bringing news that the brave expedition had reached within about 100 miles of the top of the world.

Thus, through the North American Newspaper alliance, the world was given the information that the intrepid party descended in a clear lane of water, saw one of its two planes jammed in the ice, and was forced to tear loose from freezing water the second plane, limit rations while a path for a take-off was cleared, transfer all materials, me-and gasoline to the remaining plane, and undertake the 600-mile return journey to Kings Bay, from which the start was made on May 21.

Plans of the explorers to fly to the pole in a single hop were found to have been slightly off, but would have been practically correct had it not been for a heavy headwind. Discovery that half of the motor fuel was gone forced a landing near the pole, and observations showed exactly 1,000 kilometers had been covered, 200 kilometers having been surrendered to the strong headwind. That distance farther would have been practically the pole.

Oslo Celebrates Return.
Oslo, capital of Norway, home land of Amundsen, was alive tonight with celebration of the glorious exploit of the Arctic explorer. Even though he did not reach the pole, then was much enthusiasm in recognition of the fact that the efficiency of the airplane in such journeys, a speculation turned to a possible return flight. In the cafes and theaters the national anthem was played while diners and spectators cheered lustily the name of Amundsen. Win-dows were placarded with the news of the exploit and crowds gathered to read about it.

Reforms Urged By La Follette Enacted Into Law

Washington, June 18.—Though always in the minority and often alone, Senator La Follette's original 13 national planks, rejected by the republican national convention in 1908, have been entirely enacted into law. They are:

1. Give initiative to interstate commerce commission.
2. Suspend freight rate increase when challenged.
3. Establish freight rate classification.
4. Make governmental valuation of railroads.
5. Create tariff commission.
6. Exempt labor organizations from anti-trust laws.
7. Direct election of United States senators.
8. Publicity of campaign expenditures.
9. Regulation of telegraph and telephone rates.
10. Remedy misuse of injunction in labor disputes.
11. Extend eight-hour law to government employees.
12. General employers' liability act.

HOTEL MEN MEET NEXT IN ALBANY

BY ALBERT HARDY, JR.,
Consulting Staff Correspondent.
Albany, Ga., June 18.—(Special.)—Albany was selected as the convention city for the winter meeting in December of the Georgia Hotel Men's association Thursday morning at the closing session of the two-day summer convention of the association held in the Clarke county courthouse.

The invitation was extended by Ed Young, manager of the Albany hotel of Albany, Ga., Wednesday afternoon at the first session of the convention.

The matter was referred to the executive committee, the committee rendering its report at the close of the morning session Thursday.

Membership Drive.

After lengthy discussion the convention voted unanimously to affiliate with the American Hotel Men's association and begin an active campaign of work.

Continued discussion and formulation of plans for a state-wide membership drive was also a feature of the closing session.

Frank Maloney, of Atlanta, secretary of the association, spoke on the subject, "Legal Problems," and led an open forum, discussing every angle of association business.

Following his address a question box was held and many members having important subjects to bring up made brief addresses.

"For the Good of the Order," an address by Will V. Zimmer, of Atlanta, proved to be very helpful suggestions for affairs of the association.

Zimmer dealt on the subject of legislation, protection, selling the association and the membership campaign.

Ed Young gave an interesting talk on "Tourists and Their Problems." Mr. Young's address was followed by a "Have Your Say" period, at which time all members desiring to do so gave the attendance helpful suggestions and told of their respective experiences.

Moody, past president of the organization, made a brief address on "Feelings of a Past President," and made many timely suggestions.

Please were voiced by members of the organization again Thursday for better support of higher education in Georgia and the passage of the proposed $70,000,000 good road bond issue.

Letters and telegrams were read by President Jack Gardner, of Brunswick, and members of the association who could not be present.

Was Huge Success.

Resolutions expressing thanks to the Athens hotel men, officials of the county and others for the entertainment features and hospitality which made the convention a huge success were unanimously adopted, and Mr. Maloney, secretary, was requested to mail a copy of the resolutions to the closing session.

Following adjournment of the closing session, the delegates were guests of Athens citizens on a tour over the city, luncheon at Costa's at 12 o'clock was the closing feature.

"Other Woman"

Wrecked Home, Says Suing Wife

Charging that her husband, William C. Granberry, cares more for the "other woman" than he does for his wife and three sons, Mrs. Maude E. Granberry Thursday filed suit for divorce in Fulton superior court.

The petitioner charges that her husband has abandoned her and has refused to provide necessities of life for his family although he is "an able-bodied man, making a salary of approximately $125 a month."

The "other woman" is to blame for this state of affairs, according to the petition, and Mrs. Granberry asked Judge E. D. Thomas to appoint a temporary receiver to prevent the estranged husband from taking his savings and going to Alabama with William C. Granberry, Jr., their 11-year-old son. He has threatened to do this, she alleges.

Judge Thomas appointed I. D. Stowe as receiver, and set June 27 as the date for a hearing.

Mrs. Granberry is represented by Attorney H. W. McLarty.

MRS. BEAZLEY DIES AT DAUGHTER'S HOME

Mrs. S. A. Beazley, 91, of Hopkinsville, Ky., died Thursday night at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Annie Kyzer, 164 Virginia avenue, after an illness of several weeks.

In addition to her daughter, she is survived by four grandchildren, Dr. H. C. Beazley, of Hopkinsville; Mrs. R. W. Gaines, of Hopkinsville; Mrs. A. M. Dodge, of Lakewood, Fla.; and Mrs. A. E. Johnson, of Atlanta, and six great-grandchildren.

TEXTILE CONCERN TO ISSUE STOCK

Macon, Ga., June 15.—(Special.)—Stockholders of the Bibb Manufacturing company today voted to amend the present charter of the corporation so that additional preferred stock, not to exceed $5,000,000 could be issued. The application should be granted about July 18. The stockholders will meet again July 23, after the amendment has been granted, and issue the certificates.

Under the present charter, the corporation has power to issue $25,000,000 worth of common stock, but up to date the company has issued only $10,000,000 worth of common stock. The present charter now authorizes the corporation to issue $25,000,000 worth of preferred stock, but only $800,000 has been issued. The amendments to the charter will mean that the present holders of common stock may be issued an additional $3,000,000 worth of preferred stock, as the charter now allows only $2,000,000 worth of preferred. The stock will be issued as stock dividends to present holders of common stock. At the meeting, July 23, the stockholders will fix the rate of dividend.

By issuing additional preferred stock, any stockholder having two shares of common stock will be entitled to one share of preferred stock. E. T. Comer, of Savannah, chairman of the board of directors, presided at today's meeting.

kilometers reaching to about 88.30 north without any indication of land. Considering depth disclosed by our soundings, we therefore thought it most improbable that we would find any land further north on this side of the pole.

Moreover, there were no grounds for assuming that ice conditions further north would be such as to permit of a successful landing. A landing at the actual pole, with opportunity for observation, would apparently have been impossible. We believe that merely flying over the pole without making these accurate observations would have been feasible under the conditions we observed, although without real significance and therefore not worth taking a great risk to accomplish.

Lay Return Course.

We agreed finally that instead of continuing further north we would lay a return course by a route further east in order to cross hitherto undiscovered tracts. With planes ice-locked apparently, our greatest difficulty was to get them into the air again. The situation was obviously critical and with a view to lasting as long as possible, we reduced our daily rations after the first day to 300 grams per head. This was less than a pound per day per man and meant stretching our food supply over twice the period originally planned.

Get Plane Clear.

In order to get one plane clear, we concentrated our energies on the N-25 and for the following 24 days we underwent all sorts of difficulties caused by the vagaries of the fickle Arctic ocean.

The N-25 being freed after the greatest exertions, we examined the plane. Though showing the signs of strain, it was luckily practically undamaged out of the pack ice to a starting place which we had levelled some distance away.

Our many trials and tribulations in this period of tremendous effort will be told in subsequent articles.

On June 14 cracks suddenly opened in the ice under our feet, threatening to remove a third of the work which we had done in levelling a starting place along the frozen surface.

In view of this serious possibility, we decided on the morning of June 15 to make starting trials with a greatly reduced load without waiting to further lengthen the cleared area.

We discarded nearly all our equipment, keeping only a minimum of food stores and the smallest possible quantity of gasoline to proceed southward to our base.

As there was no improvement in the weather on June 16, we made our plane secure to the land ice on the edge of this bay and the members of the expedition left aboard the Sjoeliv for Kings Bay, a distance of about 130 miles by sea.

Our plane was to reach our base at Kings Bay as soon as possible, get gasoline and send it back so that the plane could be flown overland to base.

The start was successful.

We arrived in Kings Bay at 1 o'clock on the morning of June 18. During our flights, both up and back, four Goerz solar compasses were of essential importance and operated with entire satisfaction.

Solar Compasses Used.

This is probably the first time that solar compasses have been used in the Arctic and certainly the first time they have been used for aerial navigation in this part of the world.

Other types of airplanes could not have withstood the strain which our Dornierwals met successfully. Their peculiar construction, unlike any other type, fitted them particularly for our requirements. The Rolls-Royce engines won our complete confidence during the first hour of their operation, and not once during the later flight—when we knew there was no possibility of making a successful emergency landing—did we feel the slightest anxiety on this score. The engines always started instantaneously, particularly at times when immediate action was necessary to save the airplane under threat of danger from pack ice.

JAPANESE EMPEROR IS SLIGHTLY WORSE

AMUNDSEN AND PARTY RETURN IN SAFETY

atched a message to Amundsen and his party read: "The government sends you and your brave companions hearty greetings and congratulations on your wonderful journey. Welcome home."

Refused to Be Downcast.

From the very first, when it became evident that something had happened to delay the return of the expedition, Amundsen's fellow countrymen and scientists who are conversant with Arctic conditions have refused to be downhearted. They have insisted that Amundsen's fortitude, his resourceful knowledge of the pole regions, and the courage of his companions would bring them all back safely.

Dispatches received here from the operating base at Spitzbergen say the expedition did not land at Spitzbergen, but took to the water in Kings Bay and was picked up either by a government patrol boat or a fishing smack and conveyed to shore. Amundsen's first act was to dispatch word of his safe arrival to the North American Newspaper alliance, and within a few minutes word of the return from the frozen wastes was being flashed all over the world.

Amundsen Tells of Flight.

Amundsen's description of his epoch-making flight tells of the difficulty in finding a suitable landing place for the two planes, in which the expedition started, and the final landing in a lake of clear water. Observations disclosed that a distance of about 100 miles still separated the party from the pole, and soundings showed no indication of an Arctic continent. This was the same deduction made by Commander Peary when he journeyed to the pole. During the time these observations were being made, the explorer reported, the first plane to land became jammed between ice fields and could not be moved.

Then while efforts were bent towards releasing the first plane, ice formed around the second, and the explorers were faced with the alarming possibility that neither plane would be available unless fast measures were taken. Key began to crack around the ships as preparations were made for the getaway, and this reduced the running space necessary before the plane could get up sufficient momentum to take the air.

Return in One Plane.

Gasoline, food, instruments, baggage and men were hurried into the remaining plane and the start started. The planes, while of German manufacture, were equipped with Rolls-Royce engines from British factories, and they responded, Amundsen stated to the full whirl of the propeller. They set off for Spitzbergen, leaving one plane in the ice, determined to return with additional fuel, and fly her back to Spitzbergen.

Whether another immediate effort will be made by the party to fly to the pole was not known here, but it was considered doubtful, although two government planes, ready for the flight, are stationed at Spitzbergen. They were sent there to fly to the polar regions as an Amundsen relief expedition.

Great preparations for the reception of the Amundsen party were being made here tonight. The country is stirred to its depths by the intrepidity of its Arctic rover and his companions.

AMUNDSEN'S PARTY
HOPPED OFF MAY 21.

The Amundsen-Ellsworth airplane expedition of two machines hopped off from King's Bay, Spitzbergen, for its attempted flight to the north pole, May 21.

The venture was one at which the world held its breath, for the plunge out over the Arctic wastes was everywhere counted one of extreme hazard, but those who knew from experience conditions in the north and were well acquainted with Amundsen's ability to cope with them were almost to a man confident that he would return safely.

With Amundsen as observer in the second airplane was Lincoln Ellsworth, aviator engineer, athlete and explorer into many of the out-of-the-way parts of the western hemisphere. Amundsen and he were the navigators of the expedition, charged with the responsibility of heading it aright on its journey and coordinating its activities.

Members of Party.

In addition the expedition carried four men, two in each of the planes. They were: Hjalmar Riiser-Larsen, lieutenant in the Norwegian navy and expert navigator; Lief Dietrichson, an airplane pilot, an ex-naval man of Horten, Norway; Oskar Omdahl, mechanic, of Kristiansand, Norway, long associated with Amundsen's exploring work, and a former student of aviation at Mineola, L. I., and Carl Feucht, of Friedrichshafen, Germany, mechanic and expert on Dornier aircraft.

Amundsen has a long and brilliant record as explorer of both the northern and southern polar regions. He was the first man to reach the south pole, at which he planted the Norwegian flag on December 14, 1911.

Amundsen remained at the south pole three days, taking observations and charting the territory.

Started Back in 1897.

Amundsen started his exploration work back in 1897, joining the Gerlach south pole expedition, and in 1901 started out on a voyage in the whaling ship Gjoa in an attempt to discover the long-sought northwest passage. In this he succeeded, and by 1903 the Gjoa had sailed around the northern end of the North American continent from east to west, reaching King Williams land, where she remained frozen in for two years.

During this period Amundsen organized a sledging expedition to the magnetic north pole, which accomplished its purpose and charted the coast of Victoria land.

Plans Last Expedition.

It was in 1918, with the south pole and the magnetic north pole discoveries already to his credit, that Amundsen began to make plans for another expedition which would take him to the true north pole and thus give him the distinction of being the only man who had stood upon "the two ends of the earth." He equipped the steamer Maude with the intention of sailing as far north as Nome, Alaska, as the ice would permit and then drift across the pole with the polar current, but after two seasons of unfavorable experiences, including the accident to the Maude, he returned to the United States and began his plans for an airplane flight to the pole.

Hopped Off May 21.

Amundsen's efforts to this end did not bear fruit for some time, owing to difficulties with his airplane equipment, but this year he brought his efforts to a focus, obtained the two machines with which he made his flight, had them transported to Spitzbergen and after several weeks of preliminary work made his memorable jump-off from Kings Bay on May 21.

the government of Norway giving $10,000.

Ellsworth comes back from the expedition to hear the sad news that his father had died since the son's departure. The elder Ellsworth died in Florence, Italy, on June 3. Nearly a fortnight had passed since the expedition flew away from Spitzbergen and the period had been one of extreme anxiety for the father.

Dispatches from Florence said it was believed this had much to do with his demise.

Fearful for Safety.

As the days and weeks passed, following the departure of the Amundsen expedition from Spitzbergen and no word whatever was received of the party, the feeling grew among men familiar with Arctic conditions that Amundsen's return to Spitzbergen was extremely unlikely. While confidence was expressed in exploratory circles that the Norwegian and his companions would ultimately emerge safely, it was generally thought their airplanes had been either damaged or destroyed, and that they probably would have to make their way out of the Arctic over the ice, probably to Cape Columbia, about 500 miles from the pole.

The expedition had an emergency outfit, complete with the most minute details, for a return by land, including a detailed map of the proposed route to Cape Columbia and thence southward with all the food and fuel stations marked.

MACMILLAN: LIGHT AMUNDSEN PARTY IS SAFE

Wiscasset, Maine, June 15.—The safe return of Roald Amundsen and his party to Spitzbergen from their polar flight has cleared the way for the carrying out of the Donald B. MacMillan Arctic expedition as originally planned. MacMillan declared in a statement issued here late Thursday.

MacMillan's statement follows: "Heartiest congratulations to Amundsen. Every man of our party now feels that we can go on and carry out the plans for the expedition, without feeling we have not done our duty to our fellow explorers."

"We had confidence that Amundsen would win out and always felt there should be no anxiety until his food was gone. We are all very happy that he has won out. Our plans now revert to our original purpose of exploring and studying regions hitherto unseen by man."

"We have felt that the American people demanded a change in our plans so that we could try to rescue Amundsen. We will now establish our advance base at Cape Thomas Hubbard, instead of Cape Columbia or Fort Conger."

MacMillan heard the news while he was at Brunswick, just before he addressed the students and alumni of Bowdoin college, his alma mater. After his address, he hurried back to Wiscasset, again to supervise storing of supplies aboard his two ships. Later he went to Freeport to the home of his sister, Mrs. W. C. Fog, to pass his last night before starting on the trip.

Explaining the change in his plans, brought about by the news of Amundsen's return, Commander MacMillan said the airplane base of the expedition now would be established at Cape Thomas Hubbard, on the northern end of Axel Heiberg island.

"Unknown Continent" Views. The "unknown continent" which the explorer believes exists in the polar seas is, if it does exist, not more than a two hours' flight from Cape Thomas Hubbard, he said. The ship base of the expedition will be at Etah, Greenland, as originally planned. Food and fuel will be transported through the air to this point and an Arctic camp set up.

Given good weather, the explorer said, all the work of exploration should be completed in two weeks.

after the ships reach Etah, about the first of August. If land is found the airplane base will be advanced to the sea and the birds, animals and fishes.

Democrats Inject Jubilancy And "Pep" Into Campaign To Gain Senatorial Seats

Coolidge To Be Subtly Used To Help Oust G. O. P. Senators From Seats in Coming Elections.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, June 17.—Any one who has maintained contact with the democratic leaders recently must be impressed with their capacity for quick resurrection of spirit. They are within less than a year of a convention in which sectional bitterness gave them what some persons thought was a mortal wound and within nine months of an election in which they suffered the worst defeat of their history.

Nevertheless, at this moment, they are as alert and confident about next year's congressional and senatorial elections as if they were a victorious party. More than alert and more than hopeful, they are energetically at work. It is the outstanding aspect of present political activity that the democrats are forgetting their wounds, and ignoring their handicaps, are nevertheless, actually putting more of the quality called "pep" into the beginning of their campaign to elect senators and congressmen, than is apparent in the more highly organized and better supported republican organization.

G. O. P. Moving Slowly.

The republicans are at work in their business-like, rather slow-moving way. But the democrats actually sparkle. They have the mood and spirit that generates slogans, inspires numerous ways of attacks and makes the fight seem a fight. They manage to achieve this in spite of handicaps about which, when they talk of them seriously, they complain bitterly. They say, and obviously this is true, that the present leader of the republican party, being in the white house, can have every word he says before the whole country. That, of course, is the advantage of position that goes with whatever party is in the white house. The democrats claim, however, that their case is worse than merely that. They complain that the speeches and statements of their leaders are not widely printed. More broadly, they claim that the magazines and periodicals of national circulation are prevailing republican or, at least, unsympathetic to the democrats and the democratic present issues.

As a specific example of their limitations of publicity, the democrats say that in the entire state of California there is only one out-and-out democratic paper. Yet in the same breath they make the most confident claim that they can carry the California senatorial contest next year and elect ex-Senator Pielan who will run over the present republican, Senator Shortridge. The democrats have an ingenious plan of campaign. They accept it as a fact that Coolidge is popular throughout the country and that attacks on him would be injudicious. They apprehend also that republican congressmen and senators up for reelection, will seek to run, as the democrats put it, "under the skirts of Coolidge." Assuming this, the democrats expect to prove that many of the republican senators and congressmen who are earnest upholders of Coolidge when they are running for election are decidedly less earnest in upholding Coolidge when they are securely in office.

To Talk All Scandals.

The democrats are going painstakingly over all those senatorial roll-calls in which economy was the issue, in which President Coolidge was on the side of economy, but on which the bulk of republican senators voted against him. Undoubtedly there is ample material for this ingenious kind of democratic ammunition in the votes on the soldiers' bonus, the passing of the bonus over Coolidge's veto, the pension bill and the postal pay bill.

Another ingenious line of democratic attack has the same outline. The democrats are going to piously assume that Coolidge believes the way they do about the oil scandals. They are going to cite the activities of Coolidge's special prosecutors in pushing the oil suits. They will quote what these prosecutors have said and what Coolidge himself has said in condemnation of the oil scandals. Most of all, they will make an immensely disseminated campaign document out of the decision of the federal court in favor of the government in the Bohney oil lease. All this the democrats will do with the half-humorous, half-pious air of approving the republican president. Then they will turn to a certain roll-call in the senate, recalling the occasion when some short-sighted republicans brought in a minority report to the effect that the oil leases were wise and virtuous, pressed that report to a vote in the senate and that republican senators to go on record.

Several Backed Minority.

Quite a few republican senators voted to the effect that there was no scandal in the oil leases. Some of them will come up for reelection next year.

The democrats hope to accomplish next year what the republicans accomplished in 1918. They hope, in the very middle of Coolidge's administration, to take his republican senate and house away from him. Then in the last two years of his administration, they hoped to give the country the picture the republicans gave it during the last two years of Wilson's administration—the picture of a president embarrassed and made more or less impotent by the fact that congress is of the opposite party.

In all this the democrats are encouraged greatly by what they call "the statistical situation." It happens that next year is one of those times when the senatorial election falls approximately in a way greatly to favor one party. Next year seven democratic vacancies occur. They are all in southern states and the republicans do not possibly take them away. Of the 23 republican vacancies, on the other hand, may fall in states in which the democrats can reasonably hope to carry as the republicans. The democrats claim they have the republicans scared. They have devised a theory which, they say, explains Coolidge's policy. They say that Coolidge is merely seeking rest and consulted his personal taste, he would go to Vermont. His reason for going to Vermont, they infer, is a wish to build prestige for his friend, Senator William M. Butler, who comes up for reelection next year. That may be a rather daring adventure into surmise about a man's motives. The residuum of certain fact in it is that Senator Butler is among the republican senators who come up for reelection next year. Undoubtedly it would be a blow to the republicans if Coolidge's own state should elect a democrat in place of Coolidge's friend. The democrats expect their candidate to be ex-Senator David I. Walsh. Walsh admittedly is one of the strongest vote-getters in Massachusetts.

COAL INTERESTS IN KANSAS FORM GIGANTIC MERGER

Chicago, June 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—A merger of all the strip coal mines in Kansas, involving 19 companies and a capital of $700,000 has been practically completed and is expected to be finally completed at a meeting next Tuesday at Pittsburg, Kan., Alexander S. Banks, of Nesbitt Banks and company, of New York, certified accountants, who has been preparing the figures on this merger, announced here today.

The new company will be known as the Basin Stripping Coal company, of Kansas. The merger will be effected without the employment of any outside capital. The 19 companies involved are all located in the vicinity of Pittsburg, some of them being in Sheridan and Crawford counties, Kansas, and the others in Bates and Vernon counties, Missouri. Harry N. Taylor, president of the United States Distributing company, of New York, was instrumental in bringing about the merger.

Reunion Is Held At Oxford Home Of Branham Family

Oxford, Ga., June 18.—(Special.)—The reunion of the Branham family at the old ancestral home on Wednesday was a most delightful occasion to the representatives of the family, relatives and friends. Sixty-two gathered about the elaborate dinner, spread under the old oaks in the back yard. After dinner speeches were called for, and a program of speeches and songs, presided over by "Uncle Henry" Branham, were most delightful.

Rev. Walter Branham, the eldest son living, cited points of interest in the old place that has been occupied by the Branham family since 1855. He told of boyhood experiences, the negro quarters, and dwell on the wonderful battercakes made by old "Aunt Aggie," the like of which he never has seen.

Professor H. H. Stone and G. W. Stone talked of the uninterrupted friendship of the two families begun in Putnam county 102 years ago, living near neighbors since 1855. Rev. W. H. LaPrade and A. I. Branham, of Kirkwood, made happy talks in harmony with the occasion. Two grandsons, Walter T. Moore and Colonel Virlyn Moore, told of their happy college days, when they lived in the old home and of its influence on their lives.

A group picture was taken, in which appeared Israel Godfrey, the only living anti-bellum servant of the Branham family.

44 Tech Students Organize R. O. T. C. Club in McClellan

Camp McClellan, Ala., June 18.—(Special.)—In order to better coordinate their activities in camp the 44 students from Georgia School of Technology have organized an R. O. T. C. club to be known as the "Tech Hyer Kyer club." At the first meeting held Tuesday the following officers were elected: President, Mack Tharpe; vice president, Red Barrow; secretary and treasurer, Hal Smith.

Plans were made for an invitation dance to be given at the Anniston Country club later in the season and for the preparation of a program for Tech stunt night.

Athletic teams will represent Tech in all branches of sport in which students are permitted to compete in camp.

SENATOR UNDERWOOD UNDECIDED ABOUT RACE

Huntsville, Ala., June 18.—(Special.)—Senator Oscar W. Underwood paid a flying visit to Huntsville today, making the trip by motor from Decatur with Postmaster William Crawford, of that city.

"I have not reached any decision yet, but will likely do so in the near future," he said when asked if he had made up his mind whether or not he will be a candidate to succeed himself. Other than to declare that he was neither in nor out of the race, he declined to talk politics.

Senator Underwood appeared to be in excellent health and spirits and appeared to be in a jovial mood. He was showing his friends a picture of his new country home, 15 miles out of Washington, which he recently acquired. The building was at one time owned by George Washington.

RAIN MUCH NEEDED AT TAYLORSVILLE

Taylorsville, Ga., June 18.—(Special.)—This section still remains dry, although the biggest portion of the state has reported good rains in the last two weeks. There has not been any rain at all here since May 18.

However, the farmers have a good stand of cotton, having had barely enough rain to get it out of the ground. Cotton crops are not suffering yet on account of dryness, but should be growing faster.

Britain Will Hold China Responsible For All Damages

London, June 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—Foreign Minister Austen Chamberlain stated in the house of commons today that with other interested powers the British government would protect the life and property of British subjects in China and would hold the Chinese government responsible for injuries and for all damages.

"There can be no weakness or hesitation," declared Chamberlain.

The British foreign ministry stated such a course was the fundamental duty of every British government, and that any British government must discharge its duty. "It is not a remedy for the situation, but it is necessary because of the outrages that have taken place," he said.

SHANGHAI STRIKE BECOMING ACUTE

Shanghai, June 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—The shipping strike became more serious today when coolies and lightermen struck at the Pootung wharf. It was feared tugs and launches working in connection with ocean-going steamers will soon become involved.

Ninety former Chinese municipal policemen led a huge procession yesterday, breaking shop windows that contained British and Japanese goods.

Late yesterday afternoon strikers set fire to a Japanese-owned cotton mill, but police extinguished the flames before much damage was done.

The procession led by the former police yesterday was finally subdued by the Manchurian troops of General Chang Hsueh Liang, son of General Chang Tso Lin, the Manchurian war lord. These troops recently reached Shanghai from Nanking.

Activities of extremists in Chinese territory adjoining the Shanghai foreign settlements increased.

SETTLEMENT REPORTS PUZZLE AUTHORITIES.

Washington, June 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—The trend of events at Shanghai, where negotiations for a settlement have been reported in progress and broken off, have mystified officials here.

Official advices from Peking were that the group of consular secretaries had been sent to Shanghai to make a first-hand investigation and it was not indicated that they had been authorized by the Peking diplomats to negotiate a settlement.

It had been understood in Washington that the diplomatic secretaries in Shanghai were going carefully into all the circumstances that led up to the shooting by international settlement police of rioting Chinese students and workmen on May 30 for the purpose of giving their chiefs in Peking exact information as to the facts on which to base negotiations with the provisional government. The receipt yesterday in press dispatches of the report that a formula for settlement of the controversy as to responsibility for the shooting had been evolved, caused some surprise here, and official advices have been awaited to show clearly what had transpired.

STRIKE SETTLEMENT PLANS ARE REJECTED.

Shanghai, June 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—The conference between representatives of the foreign diplomatic corps at Peking and the Chinese with the object of bringing about a settlement of disturbed conditions collapsed today, and the allied commission left on their return to Peking. The points of view of the two sides appeared altogether too divergent to admit of any hope that an early solution could be arrived at here.

An official communique says: "The commission handed the Chinese delegates certain concrete proposals, which in their opinion constituted a fair basis for a settlement. The Chinese, however, again presented demands which had no direct connection with the occurrences. The Chinese, moreover, intimated that these points must be dealt with simultaneously with the incidents themselves."

It is understood that the Chinese demands comprised the whole of the 13 original demands.

WAR WITH FOREIGNERS DEMANDED BY RIOTERS.

London, June 19.—A Shanghai dispatch to the Morning Post relates that 50,000 students staged a demonstration demanding war with Great Britain and Japan Thursday. Several shops were wrecked by the demonstrators.

FLORIDAN KILLED IN TRUCK CRASH

Macon, Ga., June 18.—(Special.)—Archie Mills, 22, of Morristown, Fla., who was injured early Wednesday morning when an automobile truck on which he was riding turned over near Montezuma, died in a local hospital at 11:45 o'clock this morning.

Mills was in company with H. D. Wade, of Thomasville, driver of the truck, approaching Montezuma with a load of watermelons from Florida when they met a big automobile with bright lights. Wade said that he was blinded by the lights and swerved into the ditch. The truck turned over.

Mills' head was crushed. He was brought to a local hospital by Dr. R. E. McGill, of Montezuma.

E. E. Mills, of Morristown, a cousin of the dead man, arrived here this afternoon and returned home with the body tonight.

The truck operated by Wade was owned by Harold Vaughn, chief of police of Fort Valley. The chief stated that peaches were hauled to Florida and watermelons brought back to Georgia.

GIRL BRIDE FLEES WHILE BRIDEGROOM AND GUESTS WAIT

Auburn, N. Y., June 18.—Samuel Moss, trainer of George Brown, world's champion walker, came here from his home in Roanoke, Va., to be married last night to Mary Cresco only to be disappointed.

Arrangements for the ceremony at Lakeside inn had been made, 20 guests and the officiating clergymen had arrived, and the tables for a reception supper laid before it was found Miss Cresco had disappeared.

The girl's parents said they had a idea where she went.

New Charter for Atlanta Given Unanimous Approval At Citizens' Committee Meet

Sub-Committee To Consider Minor Changes Saturday and Publish New Proposal Sunday.

Unanimous approval of the proposed new charter for the city of Atlanta was voted Thursday night at a meeting of the citizens' charter committee at the Henry Grady hotel. Certain minor amendments were discussed and these were referred to the subcommittee for final action. The new charter, which embodies the city-manager form of government, will be sent direct to the Georgia legislature for action.

The subcommittee, headed by C. W. Cunningham, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, will meet in the office of Marvin Underwood Saturday morning, and, after a discussion of the few remaining unsettled points, will release the proposed document for publication in Atlanta newspapers Sunday.

It was decided at the meeting Thursday night to send copies of the finished proposed charter to Mayor Walter A. Sims and members of the city council. This will be accompanied by a letter from the subcommittee explaining that the city council was not asked to vote on the matter because of the lack of time. Members expressed regret that council would not have sufficient time to act on the proposal before it is submitted to the Georgia legislature for approval. A rising vote of thanks was given to Mr. Underwood for his "untiring efforts in behalf of the new charter." He aided the committee in drafting it and read and explained it at the meeting.

John T. Hancock, president of the Atlanta board of education, and Councilman Horace Russell were present and took part in the discussion previous to the vote approving the measure.

The completed measure is said to embody all the best principles found in other similar documents in months of study by authors of the proposed Atlanta charter.

The motion to accept the charter was made by Mr. Cunningham and was seconded by Mr. Hancock.

The meeting was presided over by E. E. Pomeroy, chairman of the charter committee.

COUNCIL DEFEATS ANNEXATION EFFORT

add about 20,000 to Atlanta's population, and would bring in property with an assessed valuation of approximately $10,500,000.

All three towns have schools, fire engines, houses and apparatus, water plants and other public improvements, it was stated.

No one appeared at the meeting to oppose the annexation project.

Russell Favors Annexation.

Councilman Horace Russell was the only speaker to favor taking in the Druid Hills section, which would have included all territory as far out as Emory road and Emory university. He stated that the property already is developed, and has practically every convenience furnished inside the city. The property has an assessed valuation of about $10,000,000, he said.

Councilman C. D. Knight opposed the plan, stating that the people of that section do not wish to come in, and that forcible annexation would be confiscatory on the city's part.

Alderman Armistead's adverse report was adopted by a vote of 10 to 7. At the committee meeting, a large delegation appeared to protest the action, while there were no speakers favoring it.

Petitions Are Favored.

However, council voted favorably on petitions to include that part of Morningside not already inside the corporate limits, and also to annex 167 acres east of Stewart avenue and adjoining Capitol View.

Alderman J. Allen Couch announced that Councilman J. M. House, of the twelfth ward, who was absent, had asked him to request council to rescind action of Monday, when it was voted to ask the legislature to extend the limits to include property along East Lake street near Kirkwood.

NEW FIRE ENGINE HOUSE IS ASKED ON STEWART AVE.

Construction of a new fire engine house on Stewart avenue near Duil avenue was asked in a resolution presented in city council Thursday by Alderman C. M. Ford, of the tenth ward. The request was made by the fire committee for consideration.

Mr. Inman's motion was not voted on, as Alderman J. Allen Couch's motion to refer the matter to the police committee was adopted.

H. C. COUCH URGES VALUE TO STATE OF REFORESTATION

H. C. Couch, assistant to the vice president of the Southern railway, in an address before members of the Atlanta Masonic club Wednesday, declared that 20,000,000 acres of land in the state could be used profitably in reforestation. The luncheon meeting was held in the Peacock cafe.

Only about 10,000,000 acres of Georgia's 57,000,000 acres are now wooded. Trees can be profitably grown on 20,000,000 of the 27,000,000 acres not under cultivation, Mr. Couch added.

W. Alvin Gaines, president of the Southern Music club, of the Southern railway, who had charge of the program, presided at the meeting.

BATTLE ON CURB SERVICE BY SODA FOUNTAINS LOST

City council Thursday voted down an ordinance which would have repealed the measure permitting curb service at soda fountains and establishments. The ordinance was introduced by Councilman Ed H. Inman, and the report was adopted without debate. Councilman Ed H. Inman, its author, casting the only dissenting vote.

COUNCIL UPHOLDS PLANS TO FIGHT STATE AUTO TAX

Determination of Mayor Walter A. Sims to oppose payment of state license tag fees on city-owned automobiles was approved Thursday when city council voted to instruct the city attorney to defend the members of the police department against such cases.

The mayor's announcement following issuance of accusations Tuesday against 10 members of the police department, who were charged by State Revenue Collector John M. Vandiver with operating automobiles without a license tag.

The mayor has announced his intentions of taking the matter to the courts as a test case, and City Attorney James L. Mayson already is preparing the city's case.

COUNCIL DELAYS WATSON STREET ZONING CHANGE

After city council Thursday had adopted an amendment to the zoning ordinance changing the zoning of the Watson street and East End avenue from a dwelling house to business section, the action was reconsidered, and the paper was referred to the ordinance committee for further consideration.

A petition asking that North Boulevard between East and Fortnes avenues be changed from a residential house to business zone also was referred to the ordinance committee for further hearings.

NEW TAX ORDINANCE ADOPTED THURSDAY, FEW CHANGES MADE

After debating almost an hour, city council Thursday adopted a tax ordinance for 1925-1926, which contains only a few minor alterations of the law which has been in effect for several years.

The measure provides an annual tax of $200 for brick manufacturers or producers; $15 per year for hosiery dealers; $120 per year for charcoal dealers who conduct that as their sole business; permits hardware dealers to carry in stock $100 worth of roofing material without payment of a special license fee; and reduces the tax on multiphotograph establishments from $60 to $30 per year.

The only fight on adoption of the ordinance came on the charcoal provision, which, as originally worded, would have imposed a tax on all charcoal dealers. Councilman Harry York and Alderman R. M. Gordon protested the tax on farmers, who, they said, sell charcoal in comparatively small amounts. Alderman J. Allen Couch, while agreeing with them in that respect, maintained that big dealers should be taxed.

COUNCIL DENIES WHITEFOORD AVE. EXTENSION FUND

City council Thursday adopted a report of the finance committee advising a requested appropriation of $15,500 for extending Whitefoord avenue. The paper was introduced by Councilman Horace Russell.

ASSEMBLY ASKED TO ABOLISH JOB OF CITY WARDEN

Abolition of the office of city warden was approved Thursday when city council adopted a request that the legislature pass a charter amendment, eliminating the position. The action was taken after council, in adopting the June finance sheet, had cut the warden's salary from $175 to $100 a month for the remainder of the year.

If the legislature abolishes the office, it is planned to place the relief of the department under the city health officer.

JUNIOR CHAMBER DENIED CITY AID FOR TULSA TRIP

When City Attorney James L. Mayson ruled the appropriation illegal, city council Thursday found itself in the position of wanting to give away a sum of money and not being able to do so.

Councilman Horace Russell asked an appropriation of $250 for use by the junior chamber of commerce in advertising Atlanta at the national convention at Tulsa, Okla., this year, and attempting to bring the annual meeting here in 1926.

Alderman J. Allen Couch, however, questioned the legality of the appropriation, and the attorney sustained his position. Alderman W. B. Duval, presiding, declared the paper out of order.

BATTLE STARTED ON HOLDING TAG DAYS IN ATLANTA

A definite stand against tag days in Atlanta was taken Thursday by city council when that body refused permission to four churches and other organizations which had filed petitions asking permission to raise money by means. In the past it had been customary to grant such requests without question.

Attorney Ed H. Inman, who made the motion to deny the petitions, stated that holding of tag days is against the law and should be stopped.

Mr. Inman's motion was not voted on, as Alderman J. Allen Couch's motion to refer the matter to the police committee was adopted.

CITY TAX OFFICE WORKERS PLACED UNDER ASSESSORS

All employees of the city tax assessor's office were placed under direct supervision of the assessors, as the result of a measure passed Thursday by city council.

Previously employees had been directly under the city committee. Now they may be hired, discharged or transferred by the assessors.

The movement was made, it was stated, to eliminate as much politics as possible in the department, as employees formerly were subject to annual election by the tax committee.

BUILDING PERMIT FEES ELIMINATED BY CITY COUNCIL

No more fees will be charged for issuance of building permits in Atlanta, if a measure passed by city council Thursday is approved by the mayor.

The action came following introduction of a proposed charter amendment which would have boosted the charge for permits from $100,000. As a substitute, Alderman Jesse W. Armistead moved that no charges be made for permits, and his motion was carried without debate.

At present, $1 is charged for each $1,000 or fractional part thereof up to $10,000, with an additional charge of 50 cents for each $1,000 or fractional part in permits between $10,000 and $25,000, while 25 cents is added for each $1,000 on permits between $25,000 and $100,000. The maximum charge for permits is $25.

City Building Inspector C. J. Bowen, has advocated elimination of charges for issuing permits, but failed to obtain the action, as the fees be equalized by charging more on permits above $100,000.

However, Thursday's action will cause a deficit in the city treasury of $11,000 at the end of the year, as receipt of that amount for permits had been anticipated, and appropriations made accordingly.

NAME COMMITTEE ON SALE OF CITY LAND AT STOCKADE

Alderman J. L. Carpenter and Councilmen Leo Suderth and Charles L. Chasewood Thursday were named as a special committee to negotiate the sale of property owned by the city near the stockade. Council already has voted to dispose of the land.

CITY ASKS RIGHT TO INSURE POLICE AND FIREFIGHTERS

A charter amendment, giving the city the right to insure members of the police and fire department, and also to establish a mortuary fund of $5,000 for widows and children of each fireman or policeman killed or permanently disabled in performance of duty was approved by city council Thursday and will be sent to the legislature with the request that it be adopted.

The measure was introduced by Alderman Jesse W. Armistead, who stated that the city now has no way to provide for families of its employees. It was passed unanimously and without debate, after having been recommended by the charter revision committee.

COTTON GROWERS RECEIVE CHECKS

Long Staple Handled.

A number of the members delivered long staple cotton to the association, and the price paid them for this cotton, depending on the grade and staple, ranged anywhere from 26 7/8 cents to 34 1/8 cents per hundred pounds.

The announcement of the association in connection with its final payment pointed out that a better understanding of cooperative marketing by growers and business men, progress by the association, and the assistance that the cooperative has been able to render its members this year in producing their crops where they were unable to get assistance locally (amounting to $3,000,000 loaned through the association), accounted for the fact that some of the largest producers in Georgia have signed up since January 1.

The new members signed during the past few months number over 1,500 growers, and in the roster of new members are many growers who produced as much as 100, 200 and as high as 500 bales the past year, association heads stated.

The Reserve Officers' association of Marine and Infantry reservists, asking Governor Ritchie to cooperate fully with President Coolidge's civilian mobilization plan for the Fourth of July. The governor has declared he would not call for the mobilization of civilians on that day.

$400,000 SUITS FILED IN FIRE DISASTER

gines were in a defective condition in that they emitted large live coals and that these caused the fire which resulted in the death of the firemen. Negligence on the part of agents of the defendants also is a basis of complaint.

The above-named defendants also are named in suits filed by Mrs. Charles C. King as next friend of Charles C. King, Jr., her son, for the death of the boy's father, Charles C. King, Sr., and by Mrs. S. N. Konkile, widow of S. E. Konkile, who was killed at the same time.

Mrs. F. O. Wilson, widow of F. O. Wilson, who also was killed, asked $100,000 damages of the Southern railroad only. All allegations of neglect, etc., which were set out in the above petition were against the defendant in this suit.

The burning of the Jass warehouse cost more lives than any other blaze in Atlanta's history, and the fire department. While the firefighters were attempting to reach the flames from the first floor, the second, on which a large quantity of cotton was stored, caught fire without warning, pinning the six men between the two floors. They were dead when their bodies were extricated from the ruins.

A fund of about $21,200 was raised by public subscription, and will be distributed to members of the bereaved families as soon as legal steps are taken to the proper assignment of the moneys in certain cases are completed, it was announced Thursday night by G. B. Carlton, secretary of Atlanta's Jass warehouse.

The money is on deposit in the Fourth National bank, and efforts to clear up all legal phases of the distribution have been made.

"In some instances the mother and father were divorced, and only minor children are entitled to the money," Mr. Carlton explained. "This makes the appointment of a guardian, and takes time to complete. We are anxious to pass the money to those entitled to it at once, and will as soon as we are able to be paying it to these entitled to it. The courts will be asked to help us decide in cases of doubt."

"The money was given us as a public trust and we feel that we should take every precaution in administering it in order that those who are cheerfully and liberally contributing to the welfare of this community and its citizens, someone who has been asleep wakes up and tries to kill it and then asks what it is all about."

CITY HALL BOND ELECTION BLOCKED

every citizen in Atlanta would be compelled to take notice of this progressive and constructive work that has the Atlanta spirit at heart.

"The mayor has advocated in his many speeches the slogan, 'Let's Go, Atlanta,' and when a member of council offers a measure of vital importance to the welfare of this community and its citizens, someone who has been asleep wakes up and tries to kill it and then asks what it is all about."

"I want to call on the progressive element of the citizens in Atlanta, business men and women who are interested in carrying Atlanta forward, to get behind this movement and place Atlanta where she belongs in the eyes of the whole country."

Inman Urges Delay.

Councilman Ed H. Inman opposed action at that time, pointing out that a committee has been appointed to consider a proposed bond issue, and asked that the paper be referred to that committee. However, his motion was defeated, 13 to 9.

A motion to place the paper on second reading then was passed by a vote of 18 to 3, and the motion to adopt was passed with but few dissenting votes.

However, when the matter came before the aldermanic board later, Alderman J. L. Carpenter moved to reverse it, and was seconded by Alderman J. Allen Couch. In addition to them, Aldermen Duval and Hartsfield voted against the election, with Aldermen Ford, Williamson and Carpenter favoring it.

Purpose of Building.

The proposed new municipal building would house all city departments, including fire and police, with sufficient rooms for use as barracks and space for all police and fire department cars and apparatus. It also would include several floors of office space not now needed by the city, and which probably would be rented to individuals at a high time as the city's expansion necessitated use of the entire building.

Although no site was suggested in Councilman Allen's ordinance, council already has requested Fulton county to donate property at Hunter street and Central avenue, behind the present court house, for use in constructing the new building. It is planned to sell the police station and fire headquarters.

SUITS FOR $15,000 FILED AGAINST CITY

Two suits totaling $15,000 were filed Thursday in Fulton superior court against the city of Atlanta.

Mrs. Eunice Bailey, 22, asked $10,000 for injuries alleged to have been suffered when she fell into a manhole in the street in front of 90 Oakland avenue several weeks ago. She claims that her left leg, arm and shoulder were badly cut and bruised.

Mrs. Caroline R. Jackson filed a claim for $5,000 damage to her property which is located just south of Grant park near Rawlings street. The petitioner owns a tract of about 30 acres and a house on the site, the petition shows, and this has been rendered practically useless because the city has emptied about one-third of the entire drainage of Atlanta on the property, the petition avers.

In New York state complaints in the United States district attorney's office against 3,350 men as draft dodgers and deserters during the calendar for the simple reason that the accused slackers cannot be found.

Rheuma Gets to Work First Day—Drives Out the Poisonous Uric Acid and Brings Quick Relief.

Twisted, swollen, unsightly joints are rapidly freed from pain and brought back to normal with Rheuma. Lame people walk without a limp, sleep comes to those who have been unable to lie in bed; hands that were helpless because of terrible rheumatism are again able to do their share for the support of the family.

Rheuma is a wonderful remedy for rheumatism, gout, neuritis, lumbago and neuralgia.

It is a wonder-worker; it never fails, never gives up until every vestige of uric acid poison is expelled from the body.

Rheuma acts on stomach, liver, kidneys and bladder all at once and quickly brings long prayed for comforts to distressed sufferers. Jacobs Pharmacy Company, and all good druggists sell it with guarantee of money-back if it isn't satisfactory. (adv.)

Showers Afford Temporary Relief From Dry Wave

Only temporary relief in the form of local showers may be expected from the present heat wave, according to C. F. von Herrman, in charge of the local United States weather bureau. The weather will continue warm, the forecast points out, with showers in various sections over the state.

Atlanta welcomed showers in the city Thursday night which were followed by a slight drop in the temperature and slightly cooler breezes. General unsettled conditions over the state, Mr. von Herrman said, is resulting in showers here and there. A scattering of thunder clouds may bring light showers at any time, the weather official said, although there is little hope in sight for immediate relief from the continued warm, dry wave in the form of heavy rainfall.

A maximum of 91 degrees is expected again today, with a minimum of 73 or 74. The high mark of April 24, of 93 degrees, has not been broken yet, though with the season alternating, Mr. von Herrman expects the heat to make another try at that mark.

Sunday will be the longest day of the year, with 14 hours and 20 minutes of daylight. There are several days, from Thursday to Sunday, with the same amount of daylight figured down to minutes, but Sunday wins by a matter of a few seconds.

Mr. von Herrman said that irregular conditions exist over Georgia in regard to rainfall, there being dry and wet areas in the same counties. This June will break no records for dryness, for in 1895 June had only 30 of an inch, and in 1911 only 1.00 inches, while 1.37 inches is this month's mark so far.

SNAPPY DRESSERS ARE OUT-GUESSED BY BRITISH KING

Ascot, Berkshire, England, June 18.—With but one more day to go, King George has outguessed the snappy dressers among his subjects beyond their power to catch up with him. It is the custom of fashionable male race-goers to adopt the king's sartorial styles at royal meets. Royal Ascot began Tuesday and his majesty appeared in a gray morning coat, gray trousers and a gray top hat. The next day most of the men within the royal enclosure were similarly garbed, but when the king appeared at 1 o'clock he had exchanged his gray morning coat for a black one, and his gray trousers for gray striped trousers. The hat was the same.

The followers of royal style were outdone again Thursday, when King George appeared in the palest gray top hat ever seen at Ascot. Queen Mary dominated the resplendent fashion show in a pale lilac gown.

A maximum of 91 degrees is expected again today, with a minimum of 73 or 74. The high mark of April 24, of 93 degrees, has not been broken yet, though with the season alternating, Mr. von Herrman expects the heat to make another try at that mark.

3,000 ATLANTANS TO ATTEND JUNIOR CHAMBER BARBECUE

Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and their friends will assemble on Avondale estates at 1:30 o'clock Saturday for an afternoon of varied and plentiful entertainment. The program of the afternoon includes a barbecue, swimming and diving contests, and a baseball game.

The Jaycee baseball team will meet the East Point nine on the diamond at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The two teams are about even matched and a close contest is expected.

Swimming and diving contests under the expert supervision of M. J. "Scrappy" O'Sullivan will be features of the afternoon. Miss Virginia Ash, champion woman swimmer of the south, will be seen in a swimming and diving exhibition.

Lawrence Burdett is chairman of the entertainment committee. G. W. Willis, owner of Avondale, tenders its facilities to the chamber for the barbecue.

More than 3,000 persons are expected to attend, as the ticket sale has been heavy. Proceeds will go toward securing the 1926 convention of the national junior chamber for Atlanta when the 1925 session is held next week in Tulsa, Okla. A delegation of 50 Atlantans will attend the Tulsa meeting.

Harry LaFleur, of La Crosse, Wis. claims the grandmazing champion ship of the country for his White Rock rooster. The peacocks were guessing contest as to how many grains of corn the barnyard king would eat before he was satisfied. Guesses ranged from 30 to 330, by nobody even came close to the right answer. The rooster ate 916 grains of corn before quit. LaFleur said he had not been fed for 24 hours but otherwise had not trained for the contest.

NEW MANSION SITE FIGURES REDUCED

Meeting Thursday at the state capitol the legislative committee charged with making recommendations as to a site for a new governor's mansion, reduced new and reduced bids on a number of sites offered when the 15th met last week. At the former meeting no decision was made and it was stated that prices asked were "too high."

A price of $200,000 was asked Thursday for the Inman home, bounded by West Peachtree, Spring and East Sixth streets. J. R. Smith, offering the property, stated that it fronted 200 feet on West Peachtree, 200 feet on Spring and is bounded on the north by Sixth street, adjoining the Baltimore hotel.

Ben Padgett, of the L. W. Rogers Realty company, offered the Dr. Willis Jones home on Peachtree road, at the entrance to Brookwood Hills for $115,000. Previously $125,000 had been asked for this property which fronts 150 feet on Peachtree road, has a depth of 450 feet, with a supplementary lot in the rear of 60 by 150 feet.

New figures on the Ed Ansley home in Ansley Park, now used by Governor Clifford Walker, were submitted by J. H. Hope Tigner. The home and grounds are offered for $80,000, while additional land can be secured adjoining, if desired, for $12,000 for three acres in the rear, and $26,000 for a piece of property fronting on Maddox drive.

The price on the Frank S. Ellis home, at 1 Peachtree Circle, was reduced from $50,000 to $40,000 by former Governor Hugh M. Dorsey, representing owners. This price includes furnishings of the home.

The S. A. Lynch home, at Peachtree and Fifteenth streets, was offered at $125,000. Other proposals before the committee include the Andrews home at the corner of Andrews drive and Peachtree road, at $125,000; the Edward Inman home on Fifteenth street, at $100,000; the George Mose home on Fifteenth street, at $100,000, and the Hunter Cooper home on Peachtree road, near Huntington road, at $100,000.

The committee spent Thursday afternoon in inspecting some of the properties. Those in attendance at Thursday's meeting included Chairman George Lankford, Ben Fowler, of Bibb county, and Ed Dykes, of DeKalb county. The other two members, Senator Redwine and Miss Bessie Kempton, were not in the city.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside. External treatments seldom cure piles.

Nor do surgical operations. The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonard, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1,000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Jacob's Drug Stores, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.—(adv.)

Pioneer Georgia Woman Dies

Mrs. Tallulah Johnson Horne, daughter of former Governor of Georgia, Herschel V. Johnson, and a relative of President James K. Polk; and herself one of the state's most distinguished women, who died at her home in Dalton Wednesday at the age of 55.

Dalton, Ga., June 18.—(Special.)—Funeral services for Mrs. Tallulah Johnson Horne, 55, will be held at the residence here Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. C. P. Wilcox, of St. Luke's Episcopal church, Atlanta.

The death of Mrs. Horne removes from this community one of its most prominent citizens of distinguished ancestry. She was the widow of Captain Pearce Horne, a gallant officer of the Confederate army, to whom she was married in 1862, coming here soon after their marriage.

Mrs. Horne was the daughter of the Honorable Herschel V. Johnson, former governor of Georgia, United States senator, member of the Confederate congress, circuit court

HOSTS PAY TRIBUTE TO BISHOP KEILEY

PEASE SLAYER GETS LIFE IN CHAIN GANG

The body of the Right Rev. Benjamin J. Keiley, retired Catholic bishop of Savannah, who died Wednesday at St. Joseph's infirmary, was carried Thursday night to Savannah, where interment will take place Saturday morning in the Cathedral cemetery.

Bishop Keiley's body lay in state Thursday afternoon following services Thursday morning from the Church of the Immaculate Conception, at which the Rev. Father Harold Barr officiated. The body will lie in state at the cathedral in Savannah today and tonight.

A continual procession passed by the bier, as thousands who loved the late bishop paid last tributes of respect.

Bishop Keiley had been at St. Joseph's infirmary for the past three years. Members of Atlanta Council No. 600, Knights of Columbus, served as pallbearers and honorary escort at the funeral services, with Greenberg & Bond in charge.

TO LIE IN STATE IN SAVANNAH

Savannah, June 18.—The Knights of Columbus of Savannah will serve as a guard of honor for Bishop Keiley, while the body is lying in state at the cathedral, through Friday and Saturday night and until the funeral services Saturday morning. Bishop Allen of Mobile and Bishop Barry of St. Augustine have advised Bishop Keiley that they will attend the funeral service on Saturday. It is expected the services incident to the requiem high mass will be conducted by Bishop Keiley.

A large number of visiting prelates throughout the diocese of Savannah and adjacent dioceses are expected to attend.

Selection of those who are to assist the bishop in the mass is under way today. Bishop Keiley is survived by nephews and nieces in Brooklyn and some of these may attend the burial. The bishop will be laid beside Bishop Becker, his immediate predecessor and Bishop Garfield and Barron who are interred in the priests' lot in the cemetery.

MARIETTA CHURCH WILL HOLD OUTING AT LAKEWOOD PARK

Members of the Maple Street Baptist church, of Marietta, and their friends will hold their annual picnic and general outing at Lakewood park today.

Every member of the picnic party is requested to meet at the church at 8 o'clock and the party will go to Lakewood by special cars. Every member is expected to have a large basket dinner ready and meet in the automobile building at Lakewood, which will be headquarters.

PRESBYTERIAN DRIVE CONTINUES IN STATE

Plan for carrying on the campaign among Presbyterians of Marietta for Columbia Theological seminary were completed at a "blue hue" dinner in the First Presbyterian church Tuesday night. The Rev. Marshall Woodson, pastor of Oakhurst church at Decatur, was principal speaker. The executive committee met immediately after the dinner and elected A. V. Cortelous as chairman of organization work. Mrs. George H. Keeler was appointed chairman of the women's work and Mrs. Mary C. Davenport chairman of prayer meeting committee.

The Rev. Woodson brought out that the Presbyterian churches of the southeast could only hope to have their vacant pulpits supplied by establishing in their midst a theological seminary, the "cream of whose graduates every year will be available for our churches. Seventy per cent of the graduates of Union seminary at Richmond remain to preach in Virginia and 365 of the alumni of the Atlanta Medical college are practicing in Atlanta."

He predicted a tremendous expansion of the seminary to the southeast with the coming of the enrollment there had been tripled and that it was impossible for the seminary to function properly with the present faculty and equipment.

Dr. J. H. Patton, pastor of the Marietta church, spoke briefly, calling attention to the fact that Columbia seminary has the largest constituency and largest territory of any of the other seminaries of the Presbyterian church in the south, and predicted that, rebuilt and properly equipped and endowed, it would rank with the other large seminaries of the Southern Presbyterian church. Dr. Patton said that in the 33 years of his pastorate at the Marietta church he had never seen a church that shirk a duty or fail to conform to the synod's program.

The campaign for raising a $250,000 endowment fund in the Columbia Theological seminary follows the raising of $315,000 by Atlanta to rebuild the seminary and giving of a $40,000 to the seminary. The state-wide movement is part of a general movement in the Southern Presbyterian church in which $10,000,000 has been raised for educational purposes in 14 other synods.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON SERVICES PLANNED FOR PARKS OF CITY

The Evangelical Ministers' association, the Evangelical church, the Baptist club and the Christian council, which have been cooperating in holding Sunday afternoon services in the Peachtree park in connection with the band concert, Rev. W. W. Meminger, rector of All Saints' Episcopal church, will be the speaker.

Youth Bound Over On Larceny Charge To Superior Court

J. H. Faulkner, 23, of 14 1-2 Currier street, laundry truck driver, Thursday was bound over by Recorder A. W. Calloway to the state court on a charge of larceny from the house. The case grew out of a scheme alleged to have been worked by Faulkner and Charlie Foster, 10, a negro, of 22-B Dunlap street, in which amounts totaling $124 were stolen from gas-line filling stations. The negro boy will be given a hearing at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon before Judge Garland Watkins in the juvenile court.

According to testimony, Faulkner attracted the attention of the filling station manager with alleged motor trouble while the negro boy slipped from the truck and took money from the cash register of the station. Faulkner denied the charge in court while the negro boy admitted his guilt, stating that Faulkner told him to get the money and the manager's attention was diverted. The case was investigated by Detectives Simmons and Whitley.

Faulkner's bond was assessed at $1,200.

BRIDE OF MONTH WANTS ALIMONY BUT NO DIVORCE

Macon, Ga., June 18.—(Special.)—Married one month and week, Mrs. Callie Edensfield Carswell today filed a petition for alimony from her husband, W. Roger Carswell. She did not apply for a divorce.

According to the papers filed by Mrs. Carswell's lawyers, the couple married on May 10 but never actually lived together. The husband, according to Mrs. Carswell, failed to provide for her and she returned to her home.

Memorial Coins Given Graduates By Hoke Smith

For the purpose of presenting a souvenir to each student who completed the course at Hoke Smith Junior high school in Atlanta this year, Hoke Smith, formerly United States senator from Georgia, Thursday purchased 250 Confederate memorial half dollars. He sent the order from Washington, where he now is engaged in the practice of law.

Former Senator Smith's contribution to the final drive in the clean-up campaign for disposal of the city's quota of the coins, was only one of many smaller contributions.

News came from LaGrange that the four cotton mills in that city had been instrumental in distribution of 1,200 coins.

W. I. Shadix, campaign chairman for north Georgia counties, reported considerable progress, an average of 1,000 coins to the county in forty counties having been reported.

GOVERNOR WALKER TO OUTLINE STATE TAXATION PROGRAM

Governor Walker will outline his taxation program for Georgia at a meeting at 12:30 o'clock next Wednesday of the forum committee of the chamber of commerce, B. S. Parker, executive secretary, announced Thursday.

The forum luncheon will be held on the same day the legislature convenes and all members have been extended an invitation to hear the governor.

MACON POSTOFFICE REPORTED CLEAN BY INSPECTOR

Macon, Ga., June 18.—(Special.)—H. M. Franks, building inspector for the government, today complimented Postmaster John Bailey for having the cleanest postoffice in the southeast.

Franks made a thorough inspection of the building from the roof to the cellar, and stated that the Macon postoffice ranks in cleanliness with government buildings in cities in which special custodians are provided.

Attorneys for Howell Apply for New Trial; To Be Heard July 22

Macon, Ga., June 18.—Attorneys for John Howell, convicted of killing Deputy Sheriff Harry Green and sentenced last night by Judge H. A. Matthews to die in the electric chair, August 4, have given notice of asking for a new trial. The motion will be heard on July 22.

KING AVERY SENTENCED FOR THEFT OF AUTOS

King Avery, alias Richard Sears, Thursday was sentenced to serve from two to ten years on Fulton county chain gang after entering a plea of guilty to larceny of two automobiles. He was given from five to five years in each case, the sentences to run separately. He was arraigned before Judge Frank McLaughlin, of Columbus, who is presiding this week in the criminal division of Fulton superior court.

IMPRESSIVE RITES STAGED AT FUNERAL FOR KRUTTSCHNITT

New Orleans, June 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—Impressive services marked the funeral here today of Julius Kruttschnitt, late chairman of the executive committee of the Southern Pacific system, who died in New York last Monday, two weeks after he had resigned, at the age of 71.

Church services, simple but in keeping with the tribute paid him by the entire city, preceded the interment in Metairie cemetery. A score of automobiles bore floral pieces to the tomb, from employees of the Southern Pacific, from men high in finance, business associates, friends and even personal servants.

Every railroad entering this city sent flowers. A mammoth design symbolized the devotion and reverence of Southern Pacific employees. Throughout the funeral services there was a deep love for flowers. This was evidenced by many small gardens to be seen along the company lines.

ATLANTA BOY SCOUTS DEDICATE HUT TONIGHT

Dedication of a new hut by Troop 31, Boy Scouts of America, will take place at 7:30 o'clock tonight at 100 Elmont avenue. The building will be used as troop headquarters. Appropriate exercises will be held.

The North Avenue Park Civic league is sponsor for the troop. The troop committee is composed of L. A. James, chairman; G. W. Tumlin, Dr. Harle L. Parks, W. O. Gaffney and E. Stephens. Joe Morrell is scoutmaster, with Raymond Russell as assistant.

MAGAZINE PLANNED BY GEORGIA PRESS; CHARTER PLANNED

The Georgia Press association plans to publish a magazine devoted to newspaper news and stories, and to establish a vacation camp for Georgia newspapermen and women, it was disclosed Thursday, following application for a charter of incorporation filed in Fulton superior court.

Detailed plans for both projects, including dates on which they are to be launched, are not yet complete but will be decided soon after the charter is granted, it was stated.

ACID HURLING TRIAL WILL BE HELD MONDAY

The case against Mrs. W. J. Maddox, 24, of 9 Plum street, charged with disorderly conduct and hurling acid Monday at Mrs. J. T. Russell, 25, of 18 Mauldin street, was continued until Monday when brought up in police court Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Maddox's bond has been fixed at $500, which she has failed to make. She denies the charge.

The acid hurling occurred at the corner of Hunter and Pryor streets just after Mrs. Russell had left the Fulton courthouse, where she had gone to obtain a court order compelling her divorced husband to pay alimony. The court finding Russell to be a contempt charge. Mrs. Russell asserted that jealousy on Mrs. Maddox's part was responsible for the acid hurling, and that the latter was enraged because of her action for alimony.

Prohi Director Loses All Faith In Bootleggers

Fred D. Dismukes, federal prohibition director, has little faith in bootleggers.

"There's a bad lot all the way through," he said and cited the following case:

Two bootleggers who asserted they were unjustly arrested on a nearby highway went to Mr. Dismukes Thursday to enlist his aid in getting them out of their predicament. They loathed the office of Mr. Dismukes for a short time. He was preparing to help them in their case if their claim seemed justified, when he noticed they had disappeared.

In a few minutes the reason for their disappearance was known. One of the girls in Mr. Dismukes' office had left her purse on her desk and after the bootleggers had disappeared she found that a five-dollar bill also was missing.

Asheville, N. C., June 18.—(Special.)—Atlantans tracking the championship flight players in the southern amateur golf tournament Thursday fell back on the mourners' bench as they watched their two hopes, Watts Gunn and Tess Bradshaw, swept away by a couple of Floridians. Elimination of the two Atlantans in the big flight left one of the most representative outfits ever held by the title race of a southern championship, with no city claiming more than one hope for the big George W. Adair memorial cup that can't come home to East Lake this year.

Play in the third round of the championship flight tomorrow provides the outlook of Louis Montedonico, Nashville, matching prods with Frank Dyer, former metropolitan champion, of Memphis; Bob Spence, of Columbia taking on S. E. Foster of Jacksonville; Glenn Crisman—long may he flourish a wicked war club—of Selma, Alabama, state champion, matched against Tub Palmer, Miami's short game crack, and Chris Brinke, Louisville pellet punisher, doing his material against Fred Lamprecht, of New Orleans, who holds the southern intercollegiate championship.

Watts Gunn, former Georgia state champion, carried Tub Palmer to the nineteenth hole, where he lost on a hooked tee shot that set him down with a five against the Miami's four. Tess Bradshaw, veteran of yea these many conflicts, caught a styne on the 16th green when he had a four-foot putt for a four, and a half to stay one up. His five with Foster's four squared the match and opened the way for the Florida entrant to join in a couple of more fours to win two up.

Gunn and Glen Crisman, playing and beating Chastain Harris of Memphis yesterday, furnished the big time for the gallery Thursday. Terrible Tess did enough of his stuff to draw somewhat of a crowd to watch him cut away at the pill, but Atlantans knowing his aversion to galleries stayed back.

When Gunn and Palmer came through the eighteenth green square it would have taken the state militia to keep back the crowd. The other matches weren't spectacular. Frank Dyer caught a hard fish to turn into a sucker in F. M. Laxton, of Charlotte, whose former metropolitan title holder defeated only two up.

Brinke had easy sailing in whipping down C. J. Lebourgeois, Jr., of New Orleans, four and three, and Tom White, another Memphis entry, was meat for Spence, who rates around these Carolinas as a warm piece of golfing material and who put the Memphis away, four and three. Lamprecht tore through his match with R. E. Spicer, Jr., the youngest of Memphis—again that confounded Memphis—who scattered the old championship course record Monday with his sparkling 68. Fred went five up on No. 14, where the match ended.

For 12 holes Montedonico, medalist

Palmer's four with a neat second putt won the hole and the match. Their cards: Gunn Out . . . 533 564 443 —39— Palmer Out . . . 443 555 552 —38— Gunn In . . . 454 544 454 —36— Palmer In . . . 545 454 454 —38—

Foster, the Jacksonville player, who knocked Tess Bradshaw out of the cup chance Thursday, was counted as a man who would blow up if given enough disappointments near the end of the match.

"I figured on this characteristic—that's what they called it—of Foster," Bradshaw remarked afterwards, "but the more disappointments I had on the second line the better he got."

Bradshaw ran into one of our once-in-a-lifetime shots on No. 2 after Foster was lying four 140 yards from the pin. Bradshaw was on in three and had two putts that gave him a five. Foster had all sorts of bad luck with his wood shots on this hole, but he took a mashie and dropped the pill from 140 yards squarely to the pin, so that when it was lifted his ball sank.

Bradshaw kept things his own way on the first nine, however, and with a par three on No. 9 went one up. Starting the second nine, Foster had a four on No. 10 that squared the match. Bradshaw went one up again on No. 14 with a birdie three—one disappointment for Mr. Foster. But then on No. 16 Foster did the styne that made Bradshaw take five where he had a four-foot putt for a four, and a half. After that Foster showed how he thrived on disappointments like being turned one down on a birdie.

Their cards: Bradshaw Out . . . 553 554 653 —39— Foster Out . . . 453 555 644 —41— Bradshaw In . . . 544 553 555 —39— Foster In . . . 444 543 444 —36—77

Crisman, the Alabama state champ, who now has the support of Atlanta's golf tournament followers and players, simply outgolfed Charles Harris in the match he won one up on the eighteenth green.

Harris had the advantage on the first hole with a four, but Crisman came through on No. 2, making Harris pick up. Both took sixes on the fourth, but Crisman dropped to seven in No. 5 by exploding out of one trap across the green and pitching back into the same trap when he made for the pin. After that Crisman settled down to a steady game that makes him a big favorite in the tournament.

Harris had a chance to win the match on the eighteenth with a four, but his putter wasn't oiled and he had to be content with five, which halved the hole and left Crisman one up. On the eighteenth Crisman's second was upped and his third was short of the green. A remarkable hole laid his ball to the pin and he holed out in one putt.

Their cards: Crisman Out . . . 542 674 553 —41— Harris Out . . . 433 653 553 —39— Crisman In . . . 434 553 465 —39— Harris In . . . 433 653 555 —39—

Atlanta, while out of the first and second flights, has plenty of troopers after the third, fourth, fifth and sixth flight trophies, cup, buttons, spoons, sugar bowls, glasses and the usual run of the lower-flight prizes.

In the third flight Thursday Atlantans worked as follows, with their prospects for Friday: Bill Spalding lost to A. C. Ulmer, Jacksonville, 7 and 6; Dave Black beat Henry Westall, Asheville, 4 and 3; and Friday plays Wilburn Baird, Asheville; Chick Ridley, Birmingham, 3 and 2.

Second Flight. R. M. Parker, New Orleans, won by default from Perry Adair, Atlanta. George Strickfadden, Memphis, won by default from S. L. Diggle, Charlotte.

H. A. Wright, Macon, defeated O. E. Cook, Atlanta, 4 and 3. R. H. Baugh, Jr., Birmingham, defeated Nelson Giddens, Memphis, 4 and 3.

S. J. White, New Orleans, defeated Eugene Mills, Raleigh, 2 and 1. Allen Brown, Clarksville, Tenn., defeated Lawrence Sheel, Tampa, 1 up.

T. R. Brem, Charlotte, defeated Roland Hancock, Wilmington, 1 up. Raleigh Allen, Asheville, defeated Tom Aycock, Jr., Jacksonville, 2 and 1.

Third Flight. Harry Ehle, Sanford, Fla., defeated Gilliland Strikeleather, Asheville, 3 and 2.

A. C. Ulmer, Jr., Jacksonville, defeated Bill Spalding, Atlanta, 7 and 6. Dave Black, Atlanta, defeated Henry Westall, Asheville, 4 and 3.

C. H. Ridley, Atlanta, defeated John Thames, Birmingham, 3 and 1. Ed Reid, Charlotte, defeated J. L. Barnett, Birmingham, 5 and 3.

W. P. Andrews, Chattanooga, defeated Gordon Gibbons, Tampa, 1 up. H. R. Lowden, Winter Haven, defeated R. P. Jones, Atlanta, 1 up. Wilburn Baird, Asheville, defeated George Orescott, Charleston, 1 up.

Fourth Flight. Fred Leake, Nashville, won by default from W. M. Harrison, Augusta. J. D. Beachman, Greenville, won by default from M. V. Moore, Asheville.

R. E. Oertel, Augusta, won by default from Eugene Galyon, Knoxville. J. W. West, Atlanta, defeated W. B. Mason, Jr., Asheville, 3 and 2.

Charles Black, Asheville, defeated W. A. Knight, Asheville, 1 up. Clarence Camp, Ocala, won by default from Roger H. Smith, Asheville.

C. B. Mott, Asheville, defeated J. P. Parker, New Orleans, 1 up. C. V. Rainwater, Atlanta, defeated M. Green, Macon, 1 up.

Fifth Flight. Joe Gumbel, New Orleans, defeated William Golden, Columbus, 5 and 4. E. A. Metts, Asheville, defeated M. F. J. bins, Memphis, 2 and 1.

M. J. Condon, Memphis, won by default from Ed Herron, Chattanooga. J. M. Whitsett, Charleston, defeated

Rivals for Babe Ruth's Honors

While the Bambino was serving a term in the hospital, many stars of both circuits were swatting the pill to the distant lots, vying with the king of swat for home run honors. If the Babe could return to the form he once maintained, however, he could catch them all in a few weeks.

John Grant, Jr., Atlanta, 1 up. R. T. Wilson, Nashville, defeated F. L. Hood, Asheville, 4 and 2. J. C. Chesborough, Asheville, won by default from Thomas Walsh, Atlanta.

F. J. Heath, Charlotte, defeated Fred Ensor, Jacksonville, 4 and 3. Richard Hickey, Atlanta, defeated E. R. Black, Jr., one up.

Sixth Flight. R. C. Reeds, Birmingham, won by default from Charles Smith, Knoxville. G. Sykes, Nashville, won by default from H. W. Grady, Atlanta.

B. D. Heath, Charlotte, won by default from R. H. Baugh, Sr., Birmingham. Tommy Shropshire, Atlanta, defeated Joe Adams, Asheville, 1 up. Francis Gudger, Asheville, defeated A. S. Higgins, Pinehurst, 3 and 2.

Amos Stack, Charlotte, won from P. R. Terry, Asheville, by default. Fred Birchett, New Orleans, won by default from J. D. Kirkpatrick, Birmingham.

Arnold, Atlanta, defeated L. J. Robinson, Atlanta, 3 and 2. For evidence, this quotation from Lewry Arnold is offered: "I just can't play Tommy. If I beat him, it will look mighty bad; but if he beats me I'm ruined." So there will be about one default at least Friday in the sixth flight of this golf tournament.

They Won't Meet. The final match in the state tennis tournament will be played this morning at Piedmont park when Bud Mansfield meets Malon Courts for the title in singles. Courts eliminated Bud in the first round of the tournament, which was played yesterday. Although dope gave Grant a slight edge on Courts, Grant failed to deliver in the pinches and Courts won the match.

The first match went to Grant, 6-2. In the next set Courts began showing more speed and his terrific serve was beginning to get across, and he took the set, 6-2. They started the third set with Courts still winning games. In this set Grant's service grew weak and his returns began falling outside of the court; this set went to Courts, 6-2.

Mansfield defeated Williamson in the other singles match scheduled for the semi-finals round. Williamson put up a good fight, but in the end Mansfield proved too much for him and won the match, 6-3, 6-4.

Mansfield and Grant won over Courts and Williamson in the finals in doubles Thursday, when they took the match, 6-4, 7-5. Both teams were evenly matched and played a good hard game that was worth seeing. This victory makes Mansfield and Grant eligible for the tourney to be held in Asheville during August, besides giving them the state title in doubles.

Mex Reibold won the boys' title in singles Thursday morning when he took a 6-3, 6-4, 6-3 match from Jack Boykin, winning the match 6-4, 6-3. Boykin and Turman won the boys' title in the doubles, taking the match 6-3, 6-4.

At the recent commencement exercises of the Philadelphia Chapter of the American Institute of Banking, 51 women were awarded diplomas.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

CLEVELAND, June 18.—After battling on even terms with the Indians for eight innings today, the Athletics staged a ninth-inning, four-run rally, winning 6 to 2. Cochrane led off in the ninth with a single. Poole and Galloway also singled, Cochrane scoring. Walberg doubled, scoring Poole and Galloway, while a single by Bishop secured Walberg. Umpire Geisel was hit on the instep by a foul tip and forced to retire.

STATE TENNIS FINALS TODAY

BY BEN COTHMAN.
The final match in the state tennis tournament will be played this morning at Piedmont park when Bud Mansfield meets Malon Courts for the title in singles. Courts eliminated Bud in the first round of the tournament, which was played yesterday. Although dope gave Grant a slight edge on Courts, Grant failed to deliver in the pinches and Courts won the match.

The first match went to Grant, 6-2. In the next set Courts began showing more speed and his terrific serve was beginning to get across, and he took the set, 6-2. They started the third set with Courts still winning games. In this set Grant's service grew weak and his returns began falling outside of the court; this set went to Courts, 6-2.

Mansfield defeated Williamson in the other singles match scheduled for the semi-finals round. Williamson put up a good fight, but in the end Mansfield proved too much for him and won the match, 6-3, 6-4.

Faiman told the witness stand for direct examination by Judge Lynch at 11:08 a. m.

Appears Nervous.

He talked in a barely audible voice. Faiman glanced nervously from the witness to the jury to counsel and shifted about in the witness chair.

"Did the witness 'Shepherd' was the juror's third question.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Did you have any dealings with him?" asked Judge Lynch.

"Yes," again was the reply.

"What was the nature of it," directed the juror, and the man who had courted and the man who had been indicted with Shepherd was off on the story the state has said it depended on to convict Shepherd.

Shepherd said he wanted to take a couple of days' vacation, Judge Faiman said. Shepherd is a lawyer.

Shepherd wanted to see some girls to sit tight. I did not hear from him again until after Billy died and he telephoned me about it.

Testimony regarding Shepherd's obtaining germs from Fa'ima's was gone over in this manner:

Q. Now, you said that you had a culture there and I had three, one para-B and one para-A and one para-B which I had from the health department laboratory a short time previous to the time that you and I discovered one of them and made a slide of it.

A. "We stained the slide with methylene blue so it did not show the fragile, organs of locomotion of the bacteria. The slides were stained and taken and little more technique was required than that which I had identified under an oil immersion microscope."

PLEA FOR COLLEGE GRADUATES MAINTAIN LEADERSHIP

ness in business, declared that women are more and more becoming a vital factor in the business of the country. He said that higher educational institutions should recognize this position, should develop qualities of leadership in women regardless of whether they are going into business or the home. He pointed out the significant fact that there are more girls coming up from the high schools than boys. Dr. McCain praised the work of Mr. Woolford and associates.

Atlanta's future, the future of the state and the nation lies in the college men and women, according to Dr. Cox, who was the next speaker.

Dr. Brittain said the meeting was a success. "This meeting means a great deal for the college work in Georgia," he said. "By such contact as this we can iron out these little jealousies and they will all disappear."

Dr. Brittain said Georgia institutions are turning out men who are being used by great industrial plants of the north and east and said that men should be kept at home. He said every town, village and hamlet in Georgia ought to have at least a manufacturing institution. He said industrial education is becoming

Reception and Dance at Fort Will Honor Reserve Officers

An outstanding social event of this evening and one which is of interest to Atlanta society as well as the army contingent is the reception and dance at the officers' club at Fort McPherson from 9 till 12 o'clock. The occasion will honor the reserve officers who are in training at the Fort from June 16 through June 30.

The club will be beautifully decorated with palms and potted plants forming a background for baskets and vases holding vari-colored summer flowers. The walls will be adorned with flags and bright streamers and unusual lighting effects will produce a picturesque moonlight scene.

In the receiving line will be Colonel and Mrs. T. W. Darrah, Colonel and Mrs. E. E. Haskell, Colonel and Mrs. F. W. Rowell, Captain and Mrs. G. C. Graham and Lieutenant and Mrs. E. S. Hopewell.

Mrs. G. C. Graham is general chairman for the occasion and Mrs. E. S. Hopewell, as chairman of the entertainment committee, will be assisted by Misses Neel and Jean Kendrick, Miss Isobel Mathews and Misses Marian and Jean Darrah.

Reception Committee.

The reception committee with Miss Isobel Mathews, chairman, includes Miss Mary Conroy, Miss Margaret Sheffer, Miss Gertrude Rowell and others.

Miss Noel Kendrick assisted by Mrs. Emil Leerd has charge of the decorations and the chaperones will include Mrs. E. E. Haskell, Mrs. F. W. Rowell, Mrs. L. O. Mathews, Mrs. King and others.

The invited guests for the occasion include not only the army social set but a group of young girls of the junior division of the Atlanta Woman's club which Mrs. Paul Brooke is chairman, also members of the younger set invited by Mrs. D. C. Lyle, of College Park; a group of sub-debs invited by Mrs. Wailies of the woman's division of the chamber of commerce and attractive members of the college set of Atlanta.

Miss King Gives

Swimming Party.

A lovely affair of Thursday afternoon was the swimming party given by Miss Charlotte King at the Piedmont Driving club.

Following the swim tea was served. Mrs. Howell Brown, Miss L. L. Shivers, Mrs. Rose W. Riley, Mrs. Wycliff Goldsmith and Mrs. Charles King assisted the young hostess in entertaining.

Little Miss Hilda Brown and Miss Rosemary Manry served punch. A prize, a string of novelty beads, was presented the winner in the water contest.

The guests included Miss Epie Dallas, Miss Constance Adams, Miss Mary Bryan, Miss Florence Bryan, Miss Virginia Harris, Miss Virginia McLean, Miss Mamie Paine, Miss Pauline Lewis, Miss Carolyn Crumley, Miss Eleanor Smith, Miss Mary Phillips Orme, Miss Colette Howell, Miss Mary Adair Howell, Miss Vaughan Nixon, Miss Lucile Jordan, Miss Helen Howard, Miss Mary Goldsmith, Miss Josephine Crawford, Miss May Lattimer, Miss Catherine Yow, Miss Catherine Flieger, Miss Louise Shivers, Miss Louise Candler, Miss Nell Strong, Miss Frances McKenna, Miss Mackliran, Miss Lydia Hoke, Miss Patty Porter, Miss Sarah Wilkinson, Miss Ruth Poole, Miss May Belle Dickey, Miss Mamie Goodhart, Miss Jean Lucas, Miss Clara McConnell, Miss Jacquelin Moore, Miss Martha Candler, Miss Helen Candler, Miss Josephine Richardson, Miss Betty King, Miss Kitty Park, Miss Virginia Hall, of Cedarhurst, and Miss King.

Miss Grace Cook Is Bride of W. E. White, Jr.

Centering the interest of a large circle of friends throughout the state was the marriage Wednesday of Miss Grace Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Alexander Cook, to Worth Ellis White, Jr.

Following musical selections by Miss Irene Landen, who sang "Because" and "O Promise Me," the bridal party descended the stairway to the Lohengrin wedding march played by Miss Pauline Swain, and entering the music room stood before an improvised altar of palms, ferns and cathedral candelabras, on either side of the altar was placed tall flower baskets holding pink and white gladioli.

Rob and Roy Smith, twin cousins of the bride, held white satin ribbons to form the aisle through which the bridal party passed.

Entering next were Miss Clara Dennington with Edward Robinson. Miss Dennington's gown was powder blue chiffon veiling silver cloth and her flowers were pink sweet peas and snapdragons tied with a graceful bow of tulle in the same shade.

Miss Madge Howell and Stanley Dennington entered next. Miss Howell was gowned in peach-colored georgette trimmed in French roses. Her hair was caught with a band of silver leaves, and her flowers were lavender sweet peas tied with lavender tulle.

Miss Ellen Bittick, the maid of honor, entered alone. Her gown was pale green georgette veiling silver cloth. She carried an arm bouquet of Onchilla roses.

Little Miss Catherine Newton was the dainty ring-bearer and entered next. She wore green organdie and carried a large pink rose which held the ring.

The bride entered with her father, James A. Cook, who gave her in marriage. They were met at the altar by Mr. White and Darrell Bell, who acted as best man.

The radiant bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white georgette over duchess satin. The cap style veil was held in place with a wreath of orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the groom. She carried a shower bouquet of brides' roses and valley lilies.

An informal reception followed the ceremony, and the spacious rooms were artistically decorated in pink roses, gladioli and garden flowers.

The bride was a lovely figure in her going-away gown of rosewood georgette worn with a full model hat of velvet and bengaline in the same soft shade.

Miss Mildred Burton and Miss Grace Jackson served punch, and Mrs. T. E. Dennington kept the bride's book. Assisting in entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Buckner, Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Katz, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Burton, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Clark, Miss Ora Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith, Mrs. L. D. Newton and T. E. Dennington.

Charming Visitors Inspire Many Delightful Affairs

With so many charming visitors in our city as the guest of equally as many attractive hostesses, no wonder social life is proving very interesting. Such a continued round of parties have done honor to them and are being planned that the younger social set finds itself in a delightful flurry of continued entertainment.

Prominent among the visitors who are inspiring these lovely affairs are Miss Elizabeth Irvine, the guest of Miss Susan Broyles; Miss Grace Bixler, the guest of Miss Jeanette Bailey; Miss Frances Lewis Sigmon, the guest of Miss Latrelle Smaw; Misses Sara and Elizabeth Bryan, the guest of Miss Elizabeth Richardson; Miss Martha Bryan and Miss Corinne Bass, the guest of Misses Catherine and Mary Bailey, and Mrs. Henry Clay, Miss Julia Anderson and Miss Eleanor Browder.

Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun Give Supper Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Calhoun entertained Thursday evening at their home on Paces Ferry road, at an informal supper complimenting Miss Elizabeth Irvine of St. Paul, Minn.

Miss Grace Bixler, guest of Miss Jeanette Bailey, will be the honor guest at the buffet luncheon at which Miss Catherine Candler will entertain on Friday at her home on Briarcliff road.

who is the charming guest of Miss Susan Broyles. Supper was served on the terrace which was bordered with shrubs and blooming plants. The guests were seated at individual tables, which were ornamented with vases holding vari-colored summer flowers which were grown in the gardens surrounding Tryggevasson, which is one of the loveliest estates in Atlanta.

Miss Broyles wore a gown of ecrú batiste combined with lace and blue metal cloth. Miss Irvine's gown was of pink satin, washed in black satin ribbon. Mrs. Calhoun's gown was orchid chiffon veiling flesh colored satin.

Buffet Luncheon To Honor Visitor.

Miss Grace Bixler, guest of Miss Jeanette Bailey, will be the honor guest at the buffet luncheon at which Miss Catherine Candler will entertain on Friday at her home on Briarcliff road.

Miss Candler will be assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. C. H. Candler.

The invited guests are: Miss Bailey, Miss Bixler, Miss Nell Brawner, Miss Elizabeth Little, Miss Edythe Coleman, Miss Mark O'Connell, Miss Laura Candler, Miss Elizabeth Denny, Miss Rebecca Ashcraft, Mrs. Bryan King Vann, Mrs. Clyde King, Jr., Miss Gray Poole, Miss Mary Elmer, Miss Elizabeth Palmour, Miss Virginia Torrance, Miss Sophie Street, Miss Nan Allen, Miss Sarah Hurt, Miss Frances Floyd, Miss Phoebe Ellis, Miss Mary Jernigan, Miss Margaret Elder, Miss Harriett Shelden, Miss Myra Boynton, Miss Estelle Boynton, Miss Nell Clayton, Miss Bessie White, Miss Catherine Smith, Miss Jane Davison, Miss Ruth Ann Hogan, Miss Katherine Norcross, Miss Marian Couch, Miss Katherine Paine, Miss Telsie Pratt, Miss Elizabeth Holleman, Miss Virginia Campbell, Miss Ann Spalding, Miss Grace Powell, Miss Florence Eckford, Miss Mary Inman Pearce, Miss Cora Rice, Miss Ruth McMillan, Miss Martha Eiley, Miss Claire Hanner, Miss Margaret Stovall, Miss Irene Thomas, Miss Palmer Dallas, Miss Runa Irwin, Miss Clara Belle King, Mrs. William Warren, Mrs. Roy Dorsey, Mrs. Virginia Thomas, Mrs. Sigmund Weil, Miss Louise Wright, Miss Louise Hunter, Miss Irene Dunn and Mrs. Homer Thompson.

Visitors Are Honored At Bridge-Tea.

A trio of attractive visitors, Mrs. Henry Clay, of Atlanta, Miss Julia Anderson, of Montgomery, Ala., were guests of honor at the bridge-tea at which Mrs. James E. Hickey, Jr., entertained at her home on Peachtree road on Thursday afternoon. Garden flowers in baskets and vases were used to decorate the apartments where the game was played. The lace-covered tea table had for its central decoration, a silver basket holding pink vases, budvases, and gladioli.

Mrs. Hickey wore a gown of rose-colored, cream-chiffon, trimmed with lace.

Miss Anderson was gowned in coral chiffon, and Miss Browder wore a becoming gown of powder blue crepe romaine.

Twenty friends were invited to meet the honorees and tea was served at individual tables.

Miss Carr Gives Swimming Party.

One of the loveliest affairs of Thursday was the swimming party at which Miss Mary Ann Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Howell, Miss Sarah Bagley, of Newnan, Ga., who is the efficient instructor in first aid and health at the Camp Fire Girls' summer camp being held at Lake Bennett.

Miss Sarah Bagley is the instructor in health and first-aid at the Camp Fire Girls' summer camp, now being held at Lake Bennett, Fayetteville, Ga., for the Campfire Girls of Atlanta.

Miss Bagley is well-fitted to do this, as she has specialized in health work at the Georgia State college. Miss Bagley teaches the girls to do bandaging, to improvise a stretcher when on a hike and to administer the many first-aid treatments that every girl needs to know in cases of emergency. One of the aims of the Campfire Girls' camp is that every girl shall improve physically while at camp, and the outdoor life, swimming and wholesome food provided cannot help but accomplish this end.

The following girls earned health honors during the first week at camp: Clara Foster Starling, Dorothy Lee, Grace Hammock, Frances Hughes, Alice Frierson, Edie Johnson, Ruby Eidson, Louise Taylor, Julia Johnson, Evelyn Winn, Margaret McAllister, Frances Bueren, Dorothy Barr, Edna Carreter, Margaret Smith, Loretta Wright, Katherine Ogle, Sibyl Raines, Ellen Eidson, Mae Compton and Louise Wingo. The following received the health symbol for having completed the course most satisfactorily: Louise Wingo, Margaret Smith, Frances Bueren, Loretta Wright, Ruby Eidson and Alice Frierson.

On Friday afternoon a track and swimming meet was held between the camp tribes and at the Friday night council fire honors earned during the week were given out.

Visitors' day at camp is Sunday and parents are requested not to visit camp on other days, as it upsets the regular camp program.

The girls attending camp at present are: Sara Cousins, Catherine Bagley, Mildred Baker, Mary Frances Davis, Betty Jones, Clara Foster Starling, Jane LaBlanc, Louise Jordan, Mary Spencer Jack, Melissa Jack, Rachel Johnson, Lellita Stipe, Marie Good-year, Mary Zachery, Dorothy Barr, Mildred Farmer, Margaret McAllister, Mary Mitchell, Rose Harold, Elizabeth Rymaki, Frances Bueren, Amalee Wilson, Marie Stalker, Rosa Fannin, Katherine Lynch, Lillian Solar, Alice Zachery.

Smoother Sewing. I like to repeat this item every so often, it is such a genuine help to home sewers after it is memorized. Thread from the spool and make your knot on the cut end. Then cut the desired length from the spool. In this way you will be working in the right direction of the cotton and you will not meet with those nasty snarls and tangles.

Daughters of American Colonists To Meet Next Tuesday

An event of great interest in club and social circles will be the quarterly meeting of the Daughters of American Colonists, which will take place on Tuesday, June 25, at the Piedmont Driving Club at 4:30 o'clock. Immediately preceding the regular meeting there will be a board meeting at 4:15 o'clock.

Many interesting topics will be discussed, the main business to be attended to at this time being the distribution of the new sheets for the year book. This book was compiled some two years ago and the additional copy to be inserted contains the up-to-date history of the club and a list of the new members.

Reading To Be Given.

Mrs. Aurelia Roach McMillan is to read a most interesting paper on the subject of colonial women. A group of appropriate songs will be sung, and altogether this promises to be one of the most attractive meetings the club has held for some time.

Mrs. Charles A. Davis is the efficient president, and Mrs. Frances Brown Chase is secretary, and the hostesses for this occasion will be the following: eight members: Mrs. Eli A. Thomas, Mrs. J. N. Bateman, Mrs. George L. Breitenbacher, Mrs. Eliza A. Brown, Mrs. Robert H. Caldwell, Jr., Mrs. Felix DeGolian, Mrs. Joel Hurt, Jr., and Mrs. John R. Watts.

Vacation Time Brings Increase of Attendance.

Now that vacation has begun to lose its novelty, with six days in the week to play instead of one, audiences at the young people's matinee have begun to increase. The Atlanta Parent-Teacher association has so strongly endorsed the practice of "one movie a week, and that the Saturday morning matinee," that many more children than usual are beginning to get acquainted with this excellent picture program.

This week's bill is, as usual, surprisingly good, with the great favorite, Baby Peggy, the lead in a long feature picture, entitled "The Family Secret." This little actress' appearance at the matinee is always a signal for an unusually large attendance.

The fourth in the "Secrets of Life" series, which deals with the fly, is proving a drawing card, for children and their parents, as well as their school teachers, many of the audience coming from suburban towns to see these marvelous new films of insect life. Recent issues of the Literary Digest and the St. Nicholas Magazine for young people have had articles about these remarkable pictures.

Andy Gump, in "What's the Use," will be the comedy feature Saturday, with Min and Little Chester as able helpers.

The prologue is of unusual interest, with a scene from "Alice in Wonderland," given by members of the Junior department of "The Little Theater Guild." Alice, the white rabbit, the doormouse and all the other loved characters of this children's classic will appear in person Saturday.

Mrs. John Lloyd, the new chairman of chaperones, announces for her P. T. A. assistants Saturday Mesdames J. A. Beall, of Crew Street, P. T. A.; R. E. Bobbitt, Jr., of Luckie P. T. A.; J. H. Savage, Joe Brown, Junior High, and J. C. Courtney, of Calhoun. The matinee starts at 9:30 and the admission is 10 cents.

LaGrange College Faculty News.

The highest distinction to be had by LaGrange college students is appointment to the Honor club. The following are announced for the session just closed: Rachael Beard, LaGrange, Ga.; Lucile Cassels, Kirkwood, Ga.; Sue Craft, Toccoa, Ga.; Ruth Davis, LaGrange, Ga.; Eugene Embry, Villa Rica, Ga.; Bonnie Hale, Rome, Ga.; Annie Joe Johnson, Abbeville, Ga.; Willard Jones, West Point, Ga.; LaMartha McChaine, LaGrange, Ga.; Eva Malone, Villa Rica, Ga.; Mabel Morrow, Carrollton, Ga.; Elizabeth Norman, Alpharetta, Ga.; Mary Radford, Dublin, Ga.; Jessie Ray, Calhoun, Ga.; Lena Terrell, LaGrange, Ga.; Katherine Wheeler, Chickamauga, Ga.; Mary Frances Wiggins, Atlanta.

Miss Stella Bradford, head of the English department of LaGrange college, by reason of her brilliant work in that subject, has been honored with a fellowship at Smith college for the coming year.

Miss Maude Helen Duncan, head of the French department of LaGrange college, is spending the summer in Paris.

Miss Lily Hamby-Hobbs, director of music, is in Canada, where she will spend her vacation.

Miss Roberta Black, art director, will be in Philadelphia and New Jersey until September.

Miss Beva McMillin, violin teacher, will study this summer at the Chicago Music college.

Misses Claire Hill, Ruth Strain, Mary Frances Wiggins and Mary Floyd are attending the annual meeting of college students of the Y. W. C. A. conference at Blue Ridge, N. C.

FRIEND SAVED MRS. WILHELMY

"Overwork, worry, no appetite, no sleep, I looked like a corpse," says Mrs. Mary Wilhelmy, of St. Paul, Minn., "and to add to my troubles my physician advised an operation. A friend, however, asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and you would see the improvement. I eat well, sleep well, have gained in weight and strength and feel fine." That is what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Wilhelmy, and it will do as much for any suffering woman.—(adv.)

Miss Margaret Bland Of Agnes Scott College Wins Poetry Prize

Miss Margaret Bland, of Charlotte, N. C., a graduate of Agnes Scott and now an instructor in French at the college, was the successful contestant in the competition this year for the poetry prize of the South Carolina Poetry society, of Charleston.

One of the most coveted honors in the southern poetic world is the winning of this prize. The amount of money involved is not the main consideration, but it is rather the notable poems that are called forth by the offer and the strong interest in the annual winner.

Before sailing for Europe, where she will spend the summer, Miss Bland received the following letter from John Bennett, vice president of the society:

"My dear Miss Bland: What is there in the atmosphere of Agnes Scott which makes it steadily produce verse of high quality and distinction?"

We have watched the work of the writing group of Agnes Scott for several years with the greatest interest, and this year again we see it at the head with the old charm.

I take great pleasure in looking to you, dear Miss Bland, as the winner of the poetry prize of the South Carolina Poetry society. The judges were also judging of South College, Miss A. S. Maxwell and myself, and with congratulations to you personally, and to the fine group of Agnes Scott college, I beg to remain,

Very cordially yours,
(Signed) JOHN B. BENNETT, Vice President."

BEAUTY CHATS
BY EDNA K. FORBES.

DRESSING GOWNS.
The dressing gown should be one of the prettiest features of a woman's wardrobe, yet most women begin their dress economy at this point. Even if you are the busiest sort of person there are still some moments of the day when you must put on a dressing gown or bathrobe, and there is no reason why you shouldn't be attractive in it, if only for five minutes.

Dressing gowns are easy to make and inexpensive. If you are a young woman and like frivolous gowns, use up your old evening dresses in this way. An old dance frock can be converted into a most charming negligee by adding flowing sleeves and perhaps a cape of chiffon and inexpensive lace.

Dressing gowns can be made up of all sorts of odd bits if one is really clever. Old lace boiled in tea looks new and becomes the smart biege color so much used. Faded silks washed with colored soapflakes or powder, or dipped in the various cold water dyes, turn out the most attractive new colors.

Terry cloth comes now in all sorts of bright shades and is so cheap that a bathrobe can be made for very little. Old winter coats with the interlining removed and light collar and cuffs substituted for the heavy ones will make warm, tailored and very attractive dressing gowns for so-called country houses. Quilted satin, once sold for lining coats, is cheap enough to make into inexpensive dressing gowns, and should be made up in nice tailored styles.

You should, by the way, study your type, for not everyone looks well in the frothy combinations of chiffon and lace which constitute most women's ideas of a good-looking negligee. Many women who find coats and skirts their most becoming daytime costume prefer the new tailored coat-like negligees of plain satin or wool.

Lucy B.—Exercises for reducing the abdomen are as follows: Lie flat on your back to a sitting position without helping yourself through using the arms.

At first it will be necessary to place the toes under a heavy piece of furniture to help you rise, but aim to do the exercises without this assistance as soon as possible; in this way you begin to get the necessary exercises which make the walls of the abdomen firm again, so that you can take them by using only the muscles of the abdomen in this accomplishment.

Tomorrow—Massage Directions.

Edna Kent Forbes is now ready to fill a long-felt need on the part of her readers—that of supplying the most important of her excellent beauty hints in illustrated Pamphlet Form. Georgian Who Saw Lincoln Inducted Dies at Kingston Kingston, Ga., June 18.—(Special.) Robert H. Smith, 84, died at his home here Tuesday and was buried in the local cemetery Wednesday. He had been in feeble health for several years, but about six months ago he walked off the rear gallery of his home and sustained a fall from which he never recovered. He had many friends, was gentle and retiring in his nature and was always found on the side of right.

He belonged to that fast dwindling line of Confederate veterans and Kingston has always honored him as a soldier of the 60s.

He was born in Rockingham county, near Harrisonburg, Va., in 1841, where he lived until two years after the Civil war, when he moved with his family to Georgia. Soon after coming to Georgia he married Miss Mollie Davis, of Shamp Creek. In 1888 he moved to Texas where his wife died.

He moved back to Kingston in 1916, bought a home and has lived a quiet, peaceful life since.

When quite a young man he carried a drove of cattle to Washington and found the city crowded with people to attend the first inauguration of President Lincoln. He saw Mr. Lincoln inaugurated and heard him deliver his inaugural address.

He was a staunch patriot, loved his country; a sturdy, upright citizen; a kind, generous neighbor who will be missed in Kingston.

Mr. Smith had no children. He is survived by one brother, Charley Smith, of Kingston.

FOURTH DISTRICT PHYSICIANS HOLD MEET IN COLUMBUS

Columbus, Ga., June 18.—At today's semi-annual convention of the Fourth District Medical society, Dr. Hugh McCulloch, of West Point, was elected president. The physicians voted to hold their next meeting in September in Carrollton, Dr. C. A. P. Ebberts, of Grantville, was named vice president of the society and Dr. C. L. Williams was chosen treasurer.

The doctors met in a one-day session, morning and afternoon meetings being held. A large number of leading physicians of the fourth district read papers. At noon the members of the society went to Fort Benning for lunch. They also inspected the big new post hospital.

The Love Cycle

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

THE CLASH.

At John's insistence, Mansfield took a position with a rival motor firm.

It was trivial work, pitifully insignificant, measured with his ability. But he accepted it gratefully and defied Helen when the inevitable storm arose.

"I must have car fare without the humility of asking you for it," he told her.

"But you're not more than a clerk in that firm," she wailed, "what will people say?"

"They'll say—the ones who know about the catastrophe—that I am a clerk because I can never again hold a position of trust. That was what your father said, remember."

"But think of my social position," she insisted. "It's too humiliating." "Helen," he said, "I'm not going to let you in his and tried to look into her mischievous eyes, is your social position more important than your husband? Would you be willing to see me a parasite, less than half a man, a craven, crawling thing, just so no one in your empty social world could say that your husband was a clerk? I almost believe you would rather have me called a thief—if the theft were large enough!"

Before his outburst, she drew away her hands with dignity.

"Don't be childish, Hal! You understand my position very well. We have a place in society, to maintain both for me and for the sake of the children. You jeopardize it by doing work that is almost menial."

"And you jeopardize my sanity, my life itself, by denying work to me," he declared furiously.

Helen took refuge in a rebuking silence. The discussion was never finished, but Mansfield decided that he had better abandon the project. After all, he reasoned, bitterly, since Helen paid for the upkeep of the household, even for the bread he ate, her work ought to be law.

But later that evening, restless and discontented and bitter, he went to see Jane.

She had brought some work home from the office and was busily engaged at her desk when he arrived.

"Don't you ever rest?" he asked, as he seated himself on the divan beside her.

"Rarely," she smiled. "I'm too restless. I'm likely to get into trouble if I'm idle. Too much leisure is a curse to me."

She leaned forward and resting her chin on her hand, studied closely.

"I'm going to give it up," he told her grimly.

"Oh, Hal, no!" she protested sharply.

"Fact," he nodded. "Helen has raised a row about it. After all, I owe everything to her. If it distresses her—" He finished with a shrug.

"You're not going to do anything of the sort," Jane was emphatic. "You're going back tomorrow morning and do the best day's work you've ever done in your life. Hal, are you a man or a puppet?"

He flushed.

"You're a little hard, Jane."

"Because you need something hard—a blow on the head, or between the eyes—to make you see sanity again. Oh, Hal, I'm ashamed of you—to let a woman's senseless whim ruin you."

"Or maybe I'm disloyal," she interrupted herself. "Maybe I'm meddling with something that is none of my business. But for the sake of the boy I knew, for the sake of the man who once represented to me everything that was fine and clean and strong, I've got to say my say and do what I can to make you see the irreparable wrong you're doing yourself."

Mansfield was deeply touched and stirred by her vehemence.

"Jane, you're the best friend a man ever had. I'm a fool not to know that you are right."

She flung back her head and her eyes flashed yellow fire.

"A fool or a coward," she fairly spat out the words. "Perhaps after all you're right about yourself. Perhaps you even like your present situation. After all, it's easy and pleasant to sit down and let someone else support you—to be the idle husband of a rich woman."

He rose on his feet at that and his face flamed with hot-shamed blood.

"Jane, you can't think that!"

"I'll think it until you prove differently to me," she told him passionately.

"Now, do what you like!"

Mansfield went back to his work the following morning.

PLANNING THE IRIS BEDS.

"Now that the iris are finishing their season of bloom," said Mr. Burbank, "it is a suitable time to make selections, to set out new plants or to transplant those that are becoming crowded."

"I have been studying the iris gardens as you advised some time ago, and have been making a list of good varieties," I replied.

"Iris," said Mr. Burbank, "should be transplanted just after blooming, as they begin then to make new roots and it is well to have them well anchored by winter."

"The spent stems must be removed, the foliage cut back, the old dead roots trimmed off and the rhizomes planted near the surface of the ground, that they may get the full benefit of the sun. The soil must be good, fertilized with old manure, but none must come in contact with the rhizomes. Bone meal is always safe, if not used too lavishly."

"We are talking now, are we not, of the European iris and not of the Spanish or the Japanese?" I asked.

"Yes, the European iris might include the iris germanica and also the Spanish iris, with its English and Dutch cousins, although they are not germanicas and have bulbs instead of rhizomes."

"How are they connected?"

"The English and Dutch iris are supposed to have been originally Spanish iris transplanted to Holland and to England, and thus producing variations. They have learned to like cool, damp locations while the Spanish iris is true to its native habitat high up in the Cordilleras. It loves the sun and thrives without water after blooming, and for this reason it is better to give these mountaineers a place to themselves in the garden."

"It is desirable to grow all three of these iris because the Dutch bloom first and are followed by the Spanish, the English coming last. This makes for a succession of blooms. The three varieties vary slightly, and are smaller than the germanicas, but are very dainty and delicate. All are of beautiful colors."

"Almost every country seems to have given its name to the iris family," I commented.

"Yes, we have the European iris with the Spanish, the Dutch and the English, the Persian, the Siberian, the Japanese, besides the American and others of less renown."

"The iris lover may have iris in his garden the greater part of the year by carefully selecting the varieties according to their season of bloom, from the early spring iris pumila and the germanicas, to the summer blooming Japanese, and in favorable locations and climates, the iris crestata, blooming from November to March."

"The grower must study the varieties and classify the colors so that the blooming seasons as well as the colors harmonize. It would be well to consult the valuable published symposium of the American Iris Society, which describes and mentions almost from seed and as he becomes more expert he may hybridize the different varieties."

"As we already have discussed the Japanese iris which are about to bloom, we need not include them here, but there is one interesting little variety blossoming earlier in the year, which deserves mention although smaller and less pretentious than its imperial relatives."

"It is the iris tectorum, and it grows on the ridge of the thatched roofs of the Japanese village houses (hence the name). Why it is planted there, has never been satisfactorily explained, but its presence when in bloom adds a touch of beauty to already beautiful surroundings."

CITY OF SAVANNAH IS IN CONTROVERSY OVER AUTO TAGS

Savannah, June 18.—The city of Savannah is in controversy with the state as to how much automobile tag tax it shall pay. The city in the latter part of May sent to the state highway revenue department a check to cover the cost of tags for all the city-owned automobiles. The check was returned with the statement that unless the 20 per cent penalty was added to the check for failure to purchase tags sooner the sum would not be accepted.

CONFEDERATE VETERAN DIES AT CONYERS

Conyers, Ga., June 18.—(Special.) William Thomas Butler, 93, one of the oldest citizens of Conyers, died at the home of his son, W. S. Butler, Tuesday night after a few weeks' illness.

He is survived by eight children: W. S. Butler, Conyers; R. E. Butler, Marietta; George Butler, L. M. Butler, D. J. D. and Miss Attie Butler, of Pasadena, Cal.; Mrs. Jessie McMichen, of Dallas, Ga.; and Mrs. S. F. Rutledge, of Atlanta.

Mr. Butler was born and reared in Rockdale county. He joined the army in 1862 and served through 1865 with company B, 35th regiment. He was married twice. His second wife died two years ago. He was a member of Conyers Baptist church, joining when he was 17 years old. He was always ready and willing to help humanity and in the upbuilding of his county and community.

Funeral services were held Wednesday from the home of his son, W. S. Butler, Rev. Callaway and Rev. Carroll officiating. Interment was in Rockdale cemetery.

MACON BUILDING SELLS FOR LARGE PRICE

Macon, Ga., June 18.—(Special.)—Jeppings Adams today purchased the old Chamber of Commerce building on Cherry street, adjoining The Telegraph building, for $125,000.

SOUTH GEORGIA MELONS START TO MOVE EAST

Moultrie, Ga., June 18.—(Special.) More than 250 carloads of south Georgia watermelons started on their way north tonight, railroad men here state. The Georgia Northern, which operates through the heart of the melon belt, moved 148 cars tonight. These were loaded between Boston, 30 miles south of here, and Sligbee, eight miles north of Moultrie. In Moultrie 38 cars were loaded during the day.

Buyers expressed the opinion that all of the melons shipped today sold for an average of $400 a car, the day's movement bringing around $100,000.

The shipping season probably will reach its highest point early next week and the movement will continue heavy until well up in July. Growers declare that it has been a long time since the south Georgia melon crop was ready for market at so opportune a time. The Florida shipping season is about over and the Georgia melons are going to market practically without competition.

Leading buyers believe that the big markets will be able to absorb the some 8,000 or 10,000 cars that will be shipped this season from south Georgia and that prices will continue satisfactory.

TRAINLOAD MOVES OVER A. B. & A.

Tifton, Ga., June 18.—The first watermelon train of the season was run today over the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic, picking up 10 cars of melons south of Tifton.

Twenty-five cars are reported as being loaded on the line today.

MELONS IN SUMMER MOVE TO MARKETS.

Americus, Ga., June 18.—(Special.)—The watermelon crop in Sumter is short in acreage this year but the melons are much finer and larger than ever.

Already there has been about 100 cars of peaches shipped this year from Sumter to the markets of the north. There will be several hundred cars of melons to go north within the next few days from this county.

MRS. J. L. HAMILTON BURNED BY LYSOL

Mrs. J. L. Hamilton, 22, who was taken to Grady hospital Thursday morning from her home, 9-Hull street, after she had overturned a jar of lysol over her face, will be permanently disfigured, it was stated at Grady hospital late at night.

Mrs. Hamilton told officials at the hospital that in trying to get a bottle of medicine off a shelf she accidentally knocked over the jar of poison. Her condition was not serious and she left the hospital after treatment.

THE HAWK

By DANE COLLIDGE

Dave Crabtree, known as the Hawk, has just been taken on as night herder for the NA cattle company, in the Powder River district. Dull Knife Arrants, a small independent cattlemen, live up to the NA outfit and quarrels with the range boss, Connolly, over some lost cow. The company manager, Cato Clark, arrives on the scene, accompanied by his stepdaughter, Anita Morgridge. Arrants transfers his quarrel to Clark, and draws his gun on him, when the Hawk intervenes and threatens to shoot Arrants if he doesn't put up his gun. After Clark's departure Connolly quarrels with the Hawk and fires his gun. The latter rides over to the Clark home to tell Anita he has left the outfit, but is always at her service. Clark offers to keep him on as one of the hired gunmen, but he refuses the offer, thus making a bitter enemy.

The Hawk visits Bull Hook, the nearest town to the range, and there meets Dull Knife Arrants. He offers to buy in a partnership with him, and together they retrieve Arrants' lost cattle. Clark's hired gunmen attack the partners without success, but they succeed in hitting one of the settlers in a raid on the small settlement of the district. The settlers and rustlers from the hills join in a hunt to capture Clark's men.

INSTALLMENT XI

TRAPPED.

Once more with noiseless care the Hawk took up his circuit of the hole, hoping to spy the hidden entrance to the cave, and hour by hour the sun rose higher until at last it swung down towards the west; and then, almost beneath him, Red Pickins popped up and the Hawk drew a bead on his back. Red was looking the other way, up towards the murdered boy and the spot where his pursuers would approach; but with his finger on the trigger the Hawk could not pull—he could not shoot a man in the back. He took aim again as Red crouched and looked around, and then in a flash he was gone. He had dropped into his hole with the swiftness of a prairie dog, and the Hawk looked across the sink.

Peering over the rim he saw the grim face of Dull Knife, and behind him other men creeping up.

"Look out, boys!" warned the Hawk, rising up for a moment to show himself, "they're right down below me. I saw Red."

He ducked back as he spoke, and across the sink the other heads dodged out of sight.

"Where's he at?" halted Dull Knife. "Take a shot at him."

The Hawk fired at the rock behind which Red Pickins had disappeared, and, seeing the smoke of the bullet strike, the others shot into the boulder pile, but the fugitives were hiding too close. If he had not seen Red Pickins, aimed his gun at his back, and then weakened until it was too late, the Hawk would have believed the sink hole empty; but now he knew it was not. Yet how could they drive the men out?

The sun went down while they were still debating the question and, having no water for their horses or even for themselves, the posse left guard and withdrew; but in the morning when they came back they found the footprints of Red and Cultus, coming out on the lower side of the sink. They were gone, and with the body of the horse holder as a warning, the posse made no move to follow; for the first man who came up on them would be killed. Carrying the murdered boy back with them the body of settlers returned to the plains, and with his rustlers riding behind him Cayey Hooten swung off west and crossed over Dull Knife pass. But as they rode down Red Fork towards Dull Knife's hospitable cabin Cub Lee pointed up to cliff.

"Shot in the back of the head."

"See that rope up there?" he yelled. "There's another one—up higher! They've come off the horn."

"Git in there!" ordered Hooten, "and hunt up their tracks. We may run 'em down yet."

"Here they go!" announced Lee, heading off down the canon. "Somebody ride down ahead and cut sign!"

"Hey! Hawk! They'll git our hawes!" shouted Dull Knife in a fury, and started off for home at a gallop. The Hawk followed after him, but their corral bars were down—the man killers had been there and gone.

"They've robbed our cabin!" yelled Dull Knife as he spurred up to the door. "Lookie here where they've been into the grub!"

He pointed to a frying pan by the still smouldering fire and rushed out to shout for the trail; and five minutes later, without stopping to eat, they were following the fresh horse tracks down the canon. The chase was on and once in the open the rustlers did not spare their stock. Cub Lee rode ahead, leaning down over the horn, his eyes on the galloping horse tracks; and when they came out on the plain the tracks led straight down the road towards the NA ranch and Bull Hook.

"Now we'll come to a showdown!" shouted Dull Knife as they rode boldly in on the ranch; but Cato Clark had fled and, helping themselves to fresh horses, the posse kept on towards town. In the NA corral Dull Knife found their stolen horses with the sweat hardy dry on their flanks and, picking up a fresh trail, Cub Lee led on, taking a chance that they were after the right men. All the horse tracks pointed to turtis Bull Hook and, seeking shelter from their enemies, Red and Cultus would naturally ride that way, for the sheriff was known to be friendly.

The posse began to string out as the long chase kept on and they were almost at Bull Hook when, at a roadhouse ahead, the leaders came in sight of their men.

Not knowing that they were followed they had been drinking at the bar, but the clatter of hoofs awakened them to their danger and they left the Six Mile house on the run. Cub Lee flogged along after them, then seeing them forge ahead, he jerked out his rifle and began shooting. Sitting sideways in his saddle and balancing in the stirrups he fired in quick jerks, working the lever like a flash, and at the fourth or fifth shot Du Chey went down. He was riding in the lead and as he fell sprawling in front of them Red Pickins' horse flew back and almost threw him, then turned and bolted out of the road. Still clinging to one rein Cultus Du Chey had checked his mount, but he was dead, shot in the back of the head.

As he fell Cub Lee stopped shooting and, seeing his partner down, Red Pickins jerked his horse to a stop. One look was enough to convince him that Cultus was dead—he turned and rode for his life. But he had waited too long and, as he's bullets ripped past him, he swerved and took refuge in the creek bed. Instantly the tables were turned, for Red was a dead shot, and seeing him drop to the ground Lee swung close to his horse's neck and rode out of range down the road. The posse came galloping after him, but before they could circle back Red Pickins had disappeared.

"He's down in them willows!" directed Lee when Cayey Hooten and his men rode up and joined him. "You keep watch from this ridge and I'll roust him out on foot."

He ran down a gulch and disappeared in the willows, but as he was beating his way up, Red Pickins broke cover and galloped back towards the roadhouse. Then the chase began all over again, until headed off from the hills Red gave up and sought shelter in the barn.

Being just out of town and on the edge of the alfalfa fields the Six Mile house was more than a hotel and saloon—it was a favorite camping place for freighters. Out in front of the big barn, where the winter's feed was stored, a huge hay scale had been installed by the roadside and, finding the trapdoor open, Red popped down it like a weasel and shut himself into the pit. But his flight had been observed and, though he did not reply, the rustlers opened fire on his hiding place. Being built flush with the road the platform protected him perfectly and, realizing at last the futility of their efforts, the posse closed in on their victim. He was trapped like a rat, but unless they worked fast the sheriff would come and rob them of their prey.

"Come out of that," shouted Cayey Hooten from the shelter of the barn. "Come out or we'll smoke you out!"

Still no answer from the pit and as the minutes dragged past Dull Knife Arrants kicked open the barn door.

"He thinks he can stand us off until the sheriff gits here, but I'm going to git him right now! Gimme a coal oil torch and a big bale of hay—and don't let him pot me while I'm working!"

He tumbled a huge bale of hay out into the road and dropped down on his stomach behind it and while the rest of the posse covered the trap door with their guns he shoved his movable fortress towards the scales. Not a word was spoken now, but in the silence that followed Red Pickins scuff, scuff of his approach.

"I'll surrender!" he quavered. "Don't burn me alive, boys. I'll surrender. If you'll go git the sheriff."

"Come out of that!" Arrants said, and hurl the flaming torch on to the platform. It lay lapping at the wood and the heavy odor of kerosene threw the gunman into a panic.

"O, my gawd, boys," he begged. "Put it out—the door is stuck!"

"Throw out your gun!" Arrants ordered. "And we'll promise not to shoot you. Hurry up, now, before I bust open this bale of hay and smoke you out like a rabbit!"

"Hurry up!" shrieked Cayey Hooten, "it's the sheriff! Smoke him out—we'll stand off the posse!"

Then as Dull Knife leapt forward to jerk the door open the sheriff came charging down the road.

"Stand back there!" he ordered. "That man is my prisoner! Step away from there and let him come out!"

Public Utilities also presented several points of strength. American Telephone continued its advance, rising to 100 1/2 after advancing one new high ground, and the American Light and Traction was bid up more than two points to a new peak at 35.

Other issues which mounted to new high levels for the year were Inter-National Combustion, Union Tank Car, Robert Reid, Tobacco Products, A. G. Goodyear, Rubber, preferred, Standard Milling and New York Canners.

Nash Motors broke 21 points to 410 on two sales. Havana Electric dropped eight points to 171 1-2. The latter was lower at 198 after having sagged as low as 156. Weakness also was shown by American and Foreign Power, Atlantic Coast Line, California Petroleum, Coca-Cola, Deere, Federal Mining and Smelting preferred, General Banking, General Electric, Interborough Rapid Transit, Maxwell B. certificates, Park and Tilford, Ward Baking and others.

On four points, the last named touching a new low record for the year.

Call money held steady at 3 3/4 per cent but this rate is understood to have been shaded in the "outside" market. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Weakness of Italian lira, which broke 250 points to a new low record at 3.55 cents and then recovered most of their loss, was the feature of the foreign exchange market. Demand for sterling held firm around $85 1/2, but French francs ruled slightly lower at 4.72 cents.

wards higher levels today and prices were higher from the start. Prices for gold rose to 93 1/2 points and the initial transactions proved to be the day's lows, except for July, which made a new low near the close.

When made a new low and the early firmness was due to favorable cables and failure of rains anywhere in the drouthy sections of the west.

After the opening, prices advanced, gathering strength during the second hour on a dry western weather map and failure of the official forecast to promise any rain of consequence in the belt. July traded up to 24.24, October to 23.35 and December to 23.45, or 51 to 64 points above yesterday's close.

After d-session the market closed off under pressure of realizing sales in a broader volume than the market could absorb. A heavy rain in the close showed weather and some indications of rain were reported from Texas. The market continued to ease off gradually in the afternoon, but it was at its new low at 23.91. The close showed net gains for the day of 21 to 31 points on new crop deliveries.

The temperatures continued very high in all the western cotton states, the maximum ranging from 100 to 106 at a large number of stations. Private condition accounts were even better than the official reports. Despite the fact that the certificated stock continued to decline July was relatively

With the exception of sterling and exchange on other countries now on a gold basis, heavy selling was witnessed in the foreign exchange markets in Europe, London and here. Apparently foreign holders of exchange on Italy and France were anxious to convert their holdings into dol-

"Abie's Irish Rose."

(At the Atlanta.)

It is something new for Atlanta to count the record of a local play on an individual play on the number of performances. Yet this is just what is happening at the Atlanta theatre now, where Anne Nichols' famous comedy, "Abie's Irish Rose," appears to be settled for an indefinite summer run. Saturday night will see the 24th performance and the announcement has already been made that the play will continue here all of next week. This will make 32 consecutive performances, a new record in local theatre history.

It is solely on account of the gratifying side of the audience that the local engagement has been extended from week to week, and it is now evident that the company can profitably stay here for two or three weeks longer, if other engagements permit.

Loew's Vaudeville.

(At Loew's Grand.)

Reasons for the sustained and growing popularity of the Loew policy in Atlanta are furnished in the excellent combination now playing Loew's Grand. The vaudeville bill is headed by "A Corking Revue," a genuine big-time hit, and the picture is

"Confessions of a Queen."

In the minstrel revue are found Johnson, Johnson and Johnson, three of minstrel's ablest entertainers, who are assisted by Judkins and Williams and several others in presenting one of the fastest and funniest and most enjoyable acts of the season. Four other acts, each of which is of a distinct headline quality, are found on the bill.

"The Mikado."

(City Auditorium-Armory.)

The shafts of humor with which Gilbert and Sullivan have convulsed millions of people in all English-speaking sections of the globe are keeping thousands of Atlantans in high good humor at the nightly performances of "The Mikado" at the City Auditorium-Armory. The famous comic opera is being produced with a cast which includes Metropolitan and Chicago Opera company stars and favorites of several of the biggest recent musical comedy successes in New York. The $25,000 cooling system makes the vast theater instantly comfortable each night. The stinging is the most lavish ever given comic opera in the south. The price scale has been low, 25c seats at 50c each, in order that no one need miss the entertainment on account of admission charge.

"The Desert Flower."

(Metropolitan Next Week.)

Admirers of Colleen Moore will note a wider unfoldment of the youthful star's talents when they see her in "The Desert Flower," her latest First National picture. Miss Moore, in her performance in the role of Maggie Fortune in this adaptation of the stage play, and by her characterization of Salina Peake de Jong in the screening of Edna Ferber's "So Big," has set aside the eternal "flapper" classification which her previous pictures threatened her with.

Betty Bronson.

(At the Howard.)

"Are Parents People," the feature picture at the Howard this week, is creating quite a sensation among Atlanta movie fans. Betty Bronson, of "Peter Pan" fame, who has one of the leading roles in this adaptation of the play, is very ably supported by Adolphe Menjou and Florence Vidor.

Charles Wynne, popular Atlanta boy, appears in the picture, singing a number of popular songs.

Alex Keese, conductor of the Howard symphony orchestra, offers Franz Liszt's sixth Hungarian rhapsody as the overture for the week.

"Chickie."

(At the Metropolitan.)

An able assistant director was nearly lost by John Francis Dillon during the filming of "Chickie," because the young man was afraid of alligators.

Don Hetrick was the assistant. He has lost the use of a shoe when an alligator bit him during the filming of "The Lost World," and when he learned that the "Chickie" company was going to Florida to film exterior scenes, he hurried to the Metropolitan and declared that they could not make alligator bait of him. His fears were calmed and he went and returned safely. "Chickie" is the attraction this week at the Metropolitan theater.

"Eve's Secret."

(At the Rialto.)

"Eve's Secret," a Paramount screen version of the Broadway hit, "The Moon Flower," co-starring Betty Bronson and Jack Holt at the Rialto, is the attraction this week at the Rialto theater.

ENGINEERS TO HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICES

Annual memorial services for members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Ladies Auxiliary who have died during the past year will be held at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon at St. Paul's Methodist church. A special tribute will be paid in the services to the late chief engineer, Mr. Stone's death last Friday after a breakdown brought on by overwork in handling the financial affairs of the organization of which he was head, estimated to be $150,000,000.

ELSA MOST TAKES HEADLINER PLACE ON FORSYTH BILL

One of those "life of the party" girls—that Elsa Most, who put over an excruciatingly funny college set dance sketch, entitled "The Last Dance" Thursday night at the Forsyth theater to such an extent that she and her partner, Bill Newell, now have a laugh line, were given several recalls.

In addition to Elsa, who startsles you with her resemblance to some delightful funny girl, who is somewhere else in your life, and Bill, an act showing the return of the prodigal son, with a $600,000 roll, gets the heart interest of the audience with his clever sentimentality. This is "The Minstrel Boy," in which William A. Kennedy, the Irish-American tenor, as Danny, sings songs of those touching ballads of Pat and Mike's homeland, Bertina Robinson, as Danny's "mither," and Frank Burke, as the father of Danny's sweetheart, played by Mary Danis, portray simple Irish home folks to perfection.

Zellias Sisters put some new stunts into an aerial act, "The Big Time's circuit," with their youth, vitality and grace, give the audience a real treat. Frank Jerome and Evelyn breeze in from Broadway in an enjoyable sketch, "The Minstrel Boy," in which William A. Kennedy, the Irish-American tenor, as Danny, sings songs of those touching ballads of Pat and Mike's homeland, Bertina Robinson, as Danny's "mither," and Frank Burke, as the father of Danny's sweetheart, played by Mary Danis, portray simple Irish home folks to perfection.

From the ridiculous to the sublime in the ring of a curtain—that is the transition when Newell and Moore give place on the stage to the leading roles, is perfectly wonderful. The complete program of the services follows:
